Viet war finances short $1-$2 billion

Dow Jones-Offaway News
WASHINGTON — U.S. Defense Department planners figure they need an additional $1 billion to $2 billion from the U.S. Congress to finance the expanded war in Southeast Asia.

The Nixon administration hasn't made a final decision to seek the money — a decision that undoubtedly would further inflame the debate in Congress over President Nixon's decision to mine the ports of North Vietnam.

But there are strong budgetary pressures in the defense department to make the request, regardless of the debate it might stir, and Thursday Pentagon spokesman Jerry Friedheim said it's "very likely" the defense department will seek more war funds.

Supplemental funds
Friedheim said he didn't have "any estimate" of how much might be sought, but Pentagon sources indicated current thinking is in terms of $500 million to $1 billion for the remainder of fiscal 1972, which ends June 30, and the same range for fiscal 1973. The figures are "still nebulous as hell," a source said.

For fiscal 1972, which has only seven more weeks, the Pentagon would request a supplemental appropriation to its $77.1 billion budget. For fiscal 1973, it might seek the extra money simply by increasing its $83.4 billion budget request currently before Congress.

The need for the extra money results from the Easter offensive launched by Hanoi and the massive U.S. naval and air response. It stands as the hardest evidence to date of just how badly Washington underestimated the North Vietnamese Army's offensive capability and overestimated the ability of the South Vietnamese to stand on their own.

The big pinch is being felt in the defense department's "Operation and Maintenance Accounts." It's from these so-called "O and M funds" that the money comes for such items as bombs, jet fuel for aircraft, fuel oil for warships and ordnance for naval guns. All are being expended at a much heavier rate than expected only a few months ago.

Largest fleet
For example, the U.S. fleet off the coast of Vietnam today numbers about 60 ships and 41,000 men — the largest fleet assembled since World War II. At the end of March, the Vietnam fleet counted only about 30 ships and 18,000 men. The number of U.S. fixed-wing aircraft in the Indochina theater similarly has soared to 700 from 350 in mid-February.

Because of the unexpectedly high tempo of U.S. operation in Vietnam, the operating accounts are "practically" dry as the end of fiscal 1972 approaches, a defense planner says.

Russia demands U.S. stop naval blockade

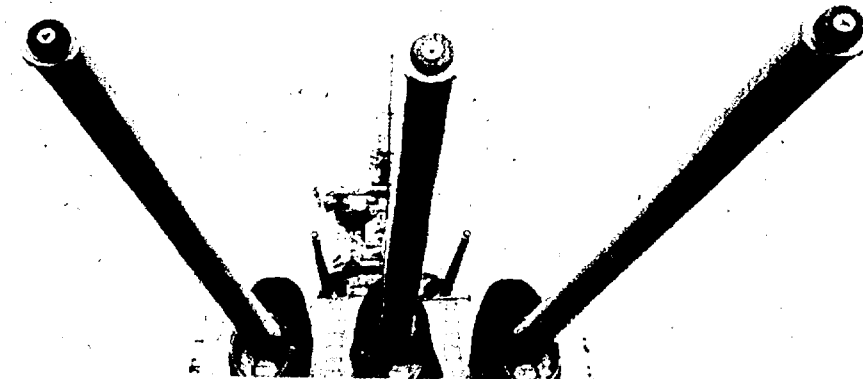

By United Press International
The Soviet Union demanded Thursday that the United States stop blockading North Vietnam but did not threaten direct retaliation. President Nixon held a cordial meeting with two top Soviet officials in Washington and plans proceeded for a summit meeting in Moscow.

The mined blockade of seven North Vietnamese ports entered its second day today without incident. China protested the action in separate statements issued in Peking and the United Nations.

The heaviest and most concentrated U.S. B52 bomber strikes of the Indochina war were conducted Thursday and early today in an attempt to save the embattled province capital of An Loc, 60 miles north of Saigon, military spokesmen said. The huge jets flew 22 bombing waves between noon Thursday and dawn today, dumping 2,000 tons of explosives.

North Vietnamese gunners answered the B52 raids with the heaviest shelling of the Vietnam war. Communists bombarded An Loc with 10,000 rounds of artillery, rocket and mortar fire and North Vietnamese infantrymen captured half of the city as the siege entered the 37th day.

The U.S. Command meanwhile said it had "nothing to report" on the blockade which was announced by Nixon Monday night. It went into effect without incident Thursday morning when mines at the entrances for seven North Vietnamese ports were automatically activated.

The Soviet government statement issued from the Kremlin made no direct reference to Nixon or his scheduled Moscow summit later this month, but it was firm in tone.

However, Nikolai Patolichev, the visiting Soviet foreign trade minister, and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin were received at the White House by Nixon just three hours after the blockade became effective.

The White House said the meeting was a "courtesy call" by Patolichev.

On his return to the Soviet embassy after the cordial meeting with Nixon, Patolichev was asked by a television reporter whether the summit was still on.

"Was there any doubt?" asked Patolichev, smiling broadly.

White House Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler said that "we are proceeding with plans for the summit." The President and Mrs. Nixon are to arrive in Moscow May 22 for a week's visit.

The blockade became fully operative Thursday with the automatic activation of thousands of mines dropped from planes earlier in the week into the off-shore area of North Vietnam's seven seaports, all of them on the Gulf of Tonkin.

Further out, cruisers and destroyers of the U.S. Seventh Fleet used their long-range guns to bombard major military targets along North Vietnam's coastline. Most of the fire Thursday was concentrated on fuel storage depots on the Don Son peninsula four miles south of the major port city of Haiphong.

The force of 60 ships off the Vietnamese coast, including five aircraft carriers, five cruisers and 30 destroyers, was described by naval officers as the biggest assembly of U.S. warships in the Western Pacific since World War II. Their mission is to "interdict," as Nixon described it, any ships attempting to enter North Vietnamese harbors.

The U.S. Defense Department in Washington said there were no incidents involving the blockade during the first three hours of its activation. A Pentagon spokesman said that at the time the mines were activated, there were 31 ships in Haiphong harbor. Sixteen of these vessels flew the Soviet flag.

In the air, U.S. warplanes flew about 200 strikes Thursday against military and supply targets in North Vietnam but the U.S. command declined to specify target areas. U.S. sources said, however, that the 36th consecutive day of strikes into the north was somewhat subdued and ranged only as far north as Thanh Hoa, midway on the coastline between China and South Vietnam.

In South Vietnam, the command said Communists attacking the provincial capital of An Loc north of Saigon shot down a U.S. Air Force A37 Dragonfly Thursday and both its crewmen were killed.

In the United Nations Thursday, China submitted a statement to Secretary General Kurt Waldheim, calling the blockade a "provocation" and said Nixon's assertion that it was a defensive measure was "absolutely unacceptable to China."

Students jailed for selling dope

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (UPI) — Police dispatched school buses to 10 high and junior high schools Thursday to haul youngsters to jail in what was termed the largest narcotics raid in Tennessee's history.

The two buses were used to pick up 59 of the 120 persons named in secret warrants issued following a three and one half month undercover investigation.

The roundup began at 10:30 a.m. when buses pulled up to various schools and police officers handed over lists of the suspects to the principals.

"The principal just sent messengers to the various classrooms and asked the students involved to report to the principal's office," said Police Commissioner Gene Roberts. "When the students got to the office they were taken into custody."

Roberts said none of the students offered resistance. "All of them were charged with selling, not possession," Roberts added.

The youngest suspected pusher, who allegedly sold LSD to an undercover officer, was listed as 14 years old. Roberts said several undercover agents, including some students, were used in the operation, which he said should "put a big dent in the drug traffic but not dry it up."

The commissioner said he would "be surprised if there were not some more" arrests made in connection with the operation.

Seven of those named in the warrants were out of jail awaiting trial on earlier charges of selling heroin.

800-mile Alaskan pipeline given Morton's approval

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Interior Secretary Rogers C.B. Morton said Thursday he has decided to grant a permit for the right-of-way for an 800-mile pipeline across Alaska, but environmental interests vowed to continue to fight the controversial project.

Morton announced that he was rejecting proposals for an alternate trans-Canada pipeline on grounds it would take more time to complete and the United States needed more oil as soon as possible.

Frank N. Ikard, president of the American Petroleum Institute, hailed Morton's decision to permit construction of the pipeline from Alaska's North Slope to the ice-free port of Valdez, where oil would be loaded on tankers bound for West Coast refineries.

Ikard noted the North Slope field "is the largest ever found in the United States. It contains crude reserves of almost 10 billion barrels of oil and 28 trillion cubic feet of natural gas. Some geologists believe there may be other large fields yet undiscovered on the North Slope."

"It is our hope that the remaining legal obstacles can be resolved soon so that the American consumer can begin realizing the benefits of the vast discoveries on the North Slope," Ikard said.

But lawyers for the Environmental Defense Fund and other groups fighting the trans-Alaska pipeline said they would oppose government attempts to lift an injunction now barring actual granting of the right-of-way.

They said if the government was successful in lifting the injunction granted by Judge George L. Hart Jr. in federal court here, they would contest the decision in the U.S. Appeals Court.

In San Francisco, a spokesman for the Sierra Club, one of the largest and most powerful of conservation groups, called Morton's decision a short-term expedient "which will confront us with the worst possible combination of long-range results."

"Because a Canadian route is inevitable, we will eventually wind up with two damaging pipeline routes where one would suffice," said Michael McCloskey, the club's executive director.

Rep. Les Aspin, D-Wis., one of the most frequent critics of plans for a trans-Alaska pipeline, called Morton's decision a "blatant example of the interests of the oil industry superseding the public interest."

Aspin said a trans-Canada pipeline would pose fewer environmental and economic costs as well as bringing the oil to the Midwest.

In his announcement, Morton said he would issue the right-of-way permit for the pipeline as soon as it could be done without violating Hart's injunction.

Headquarters bombed

FRANKFURT — An Army headquarters was bombed in Frankfurt, Germany, and a U.S. Army colonel was killed. One of the damaged buildings was Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters after World War II. Officials said five bombs exploded, heavily damaging the Army's 5th Corps complex, often called "Little America" because of the clustering of military facilities there. Officials didn't speculate who was responsible for the damage.

Senate saves space shuttle

WASHINGTON — A move to cut the space shuttle from the NASA budget was rejected, 61-21, by the Senate. Sen. Mondale (D., Minn.), who proposed eliminating $227.9 million in shuttle development funds, had criticized the space agency for contending the reusable shuttle would make space flight less costly. Irish endorse Euromart BELFAST — Irish Common Market membership was overwhelmingly endorsed by the voters. Prime Minister Lynch's Fianna Fail Party proclaimed the balloting "A fantastic victory — we aimed at 2-1 in favor, but it looks closer to 4-1." Officials said Common Market membership promises to revolutionize Ireland's economic and social structure.

Mine workers' bodies found

KELLOGG — Rescue workers Thursday found 33 bodies deep in the Sunshine silver mine, lifting the death toll in a 10-day fire to 84. Seven miners were still missing. The rescue teams in the late afternoon found two bodies at the 5,000-foot level of the mine and 17 at the 5,200-foot level. Earlier in the day 14 bodies were discovered. Grief swept the 60 relatives and friends of missing miners as they stood in a Sunshine Mining Co. yard. (Earlier story, Page 2.)

Cahill criticized for Tocks stand

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — Democratic legislative leaders criticized Gov. William T. Cahill Thursday for removing New Jersey's support of the Tocks Island dam and recreation project.

Senate Minority Leader J. Edward Crabel of Middlesex and Assembly Democratic Leader John J. Horn of Camden said in a statement the project is needed for water resources and flood control.

"We are quite frankly shocked that, Gov. Cahill can casually deal such a severe blow to a project which has been 15 years in the making and which represents so much to the future of the entire metropolitan area," they said. "The Tocks Island project so long in the planning stage offers this entire region an enormous opportunity to provide future water and power resources to accommodate a growing population and the chance for a major federal recreational and park installation."

Cahill, at a meeting of the Delaware River Basin Commission Wednesday in Washington, cited growing public opposition to Tocks Island.

Crabel and Horn said the Democrats "put the governor on notice that before the project is shelved, we demand to know what alternatives he proposes to provide water and power resources, effective flood protection and the extensive park prospects to replace what the Tocks Island program offers to us."

Anti-war protests mount in nation

By United Press International
Antiwar protesters stepped up their tumultuous demonstrations across the nation Thursday, blocking trains and major thoroughfares, besieging government installations and battling police. Hundreds were arrested.

On the day the American mines sown in North Vietnamese harbors were activated to halt war shipments to enemy troops, thousands of protesters gave vent to their unhappiness. Scores of persons, both demonstrators and police, were injured when crowds got out of hand in college communities and other cities from coast to coast.

The number arrested since President Nixon announced the mining of harbors Monday night mounted to more than 1800.

More than 300 demonstrators, including Dr. John William Ward, president of Amherst College, and Mrs. Julia Mendonhall, wife of the president of Smith College, were arrested when they attempted to block the gates of Westover Air Force Base in Massachusetts.

More than 100 were arrested when a crowd of 700 marched upon a Marine Corps recruiting station in downtown Boston. About 70 were seized when 300 demonstrators tried to keep employees from entering the Institute for Defense Analysis at Princeton, N.J.

Three University of New Mexico students were wounded by shotgun pellets in a clash with police that lasted into the early morning hours at Albuquerque, N.M. Two other students were shot there Tuesday, including a 22-year-old coed who remained in serious condition.

Three Madison, Wis., policemen were shot when they chased several persons they had been following into a house near the University of Wisconsin campus. Police used tear gas to scatter 3,500 protesters Wednesday night but would not say whether the shootings were linked to the protests by militant students.

Some 175 University of Florida students were arrested Wednesday night and early Thursday, bringing to 435 the number of arrests in antiwar sit-down protests in three Florida cities.

National Guardsmen, called out by Minnesota Gov. Wendell Anderson, guarded the University of Minnesota campus at Minneapolis. University authorities placed the school under police jurisdiction after turbulent clashes Wednesday between protesters and police.

One thousand persons gathered on the steps of the Capitol in Washington at 7 a.m. to hear congressmen denounce the mining of North Vietnamese harbors.

Student body presidents from four California universities pleaded at a news conference in San Francisco for "positive alternatives" to the antiwar protests and the resulting violence and destruction.

Demonstrator arrested

Anti-war protesters renewed their demonstrations Thursday at the Institute for Defense Research Analysis Institute, Princeton, N.J., in an attempt to keep the "think tank" closed. Police arrested many of the protesters. (UPI Telephoto)

On tough anti-busing measure

House won't compromise

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House voted for the second time Thursday against compromising on the strong anti-busing provisions it wrote into a multibillion-dollar college aid bill.

In a 275-124 vote, the House instructed its conferees not to accept milder language contained in the Senate's version of the same legislation.

Senate and House conferees have been meeting since mid-March to reconcile differences in the two measures, which also authorize programs for college student aid, direct financial help for private and public colleges, and $1.5 billion to help elementary and secondary schools defray costs of desegregation.

All the authorizations would be jeopardized by continued deadlock on the antibusing provisions.

The House previously voted, 272 to 139, on March 8 to insist in the conference committee that tougher anti-busing provisions be approved unchanged.

But Rep. Joe D. Waggoner Jr., D-La., offered the second motion Thursday, saying he was prompted by reports of compromises already reached by the conferees and by suggestions that President Nixon's proposed freeze on court-ordered busing to achieve integration was dead for this year.

The more restrictive language, on which the House conferees were ordered not to give ground, would delay the effect of court-ordered busing until appeals had been decided; bar use of federal funds to finance busing, no matter how ordered; and bar any federal requirement that local money be used for busing.

The Senate rejected such language in its bill. It provided instead that federal money for forced busing could not be used unless local officials asked for it; that federal agencies could not require busing unless it was ordered by a court; and that court desegregation orders that required transfer of pupils across district lines be postponed until June 30, 1973.

Nixon has proposed a moratorium on new court ordered busing until July 1, 1973 or until enactment of a second measure he proposed that would require courts to exhaust a list of alternatives to achieve desegregation before busing could be ordered. Both bills are before House and Senate committees for hearings.

Senate vote overwhelming to support space shuttle

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Thursday overwhelmingly approved President Nixon's program to develop a reusable spacecraft capable of shuttling men to and from a space station in orbit around earth.

Members defeated 61 to 21 an attempt to kill the program by denying $227.9 million in the fiscal year beginning July 1 for research and development of the shuttle.

The Senate then passed by voice vote a $3.4 billion space shuttle authorization.

Sen. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., charged that this year's space shuttle authorization was "merely the tip of a multi-billion dollar iceberg." He said the program would end up costing taxpayers over $42 billion over a 12-year period.

Mondale, who offered the motion to delete the shuttle's money, said the $5.1 billion which the National Aeronautics and Space Administration uses as a total cost estimate was "grossly and I think consciously misleading." That figure was what NASA estimated it would take to develop and get the shuttle flying by 1978.

The NASA authorization bill was almost identical to a measure approved by the House last month. Senators added only $12.5 million to the administration's budget request.

The authorization included $540 million to develop the manned orbital Skylab space station, and $128.7 million to complete the Apollo moon exploration program.

The space shuttle, when completed, will be capable of carrying three-man crews to an orbiting space station, and returning to earth like a plane for up to 100 flights.

Sen. Howard Cannon, D-Nev., floor manager of the bill, said the shuttle would "substantially reduce the cost of space flight operations ... which is not now possible with expendable launch vehicles."

The last of the moon shots, Apollo 17, is scheduled to be launched in December, and the space shuttle-manned space station project is NASA's next major effort.

But critics of the shuttle said there were more pressing problems on earth to solve.

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., said the program was "a gross distortion of the priorities of this country."

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., warned that once begun, space shuttle expenditures "will be impossible to resist in the future."

"We have to say no somewhere," Proxmire said. "The people aren't going to stand for higher taxes."

Pass charged in UMW murders

WASHINGTON, Pa. (UPI) — Albert W. Pass, 51, Middlesboro, Ky., a member of the executive board of the United Mine Workers, was charged with murder Thursday in the deaths of Joseph "Jock" Yablonski, his wife and daughter, Dec. 31, 1969.

Pass, who was brought to Pennsylvania and arraigned on a federal conspiracy charge Wednesday, was held for arraignment at a date to be fixed by Washington County authorities. At Wednesday's arraignment in Pittsburgh, Pass entered a plea of "not guilty."

The murder charge against Pass is expected to be given to a Washington County grand jury in July along with that of William J. Prater, 53, of Lafayette, Tenn., a UMW organizer in District 19 in Kentucky-Tennessee.

Both men have been indicted by a federal grand jury on charges of conspiring to interfere with the rights of Yablonski, a dissident UMW member who ran for office of the UMW presidency against W. A. "Tony" Boyle, the present UMW chief.

Pass and Prater, in confessions by two alleged co-conspirators, were accused of arranging and paying for the slaying of Yablonski.

They have denied the charges. Boyle and several other UMW officers appeared before the Pittsburgh U. S. grand jury yesterday to answer questions regarding the source of money used to pay off the trigger men.

UMW Counsel Edward L. Casey said Boyle appeared voluntarily to dispel "wild inferences and innuendoes" surrounding the Yablonski slayings.

Chevelle and Impala. We've packed them for your vacation.

Chevelle Malibu Sport Coupe and Impala Sport Sedan.

There are certain things no family should start out on vacation without.

Things that will help make your trip more enjoyable and less worrisome. We've packed many such things into our Chevelles and Impalas, the two most popular cars in their fields.

Chevelle: The most popular intermediate.

Impala: The most popular full-size car year after year.

"Talking" seat belts.

Traveling around, getting in and out of the car a lot, it's easy to forget about buckling up.

Consequently, every new Impala and Chevelle has a front seat belt reminder system that speaks up if you try to start out before buckling.

A buzzer buzzes and a light flashes to make sure you get the message.

And that's just one of many protective features now being built into these cars.

Feel their muscles.

Out on the road, it's reassuring to realize you're riding in a car that's well built.

What you get with an Impala or Chevelle is a body that's an all-welded steel superstructure, painstakingly put together. In other words, a Body by Fisher.

You get a sturdy steel guard beam in every door for added protection in case of side impact.

You get a steel cargo guard that walls off the passenger compartment from the trunk and helps keep everything in its place.

You get double steel panels in the doors, in the hood, in the deck lid. Up inside the fenders: inner fenders to protect against corrosion and kicked-up stones.

What you get, in both of these popular cars, is a lot of built-in strength and durability.

Good things to have along as you travel.

Let's talk comfort.

Another reason why Chevelle and Impala are the top cars in their fields is their comfort.

Impala is one of the roomiest cars around.

And Chevelle, though slightly smaller, gives you room for six. Plus plenty of baggage.

But comfort is more than just room. So at all four wheels we've put big coil springs to gentle up your ride.

And between the body and the frame we've placed a network of little rubber cushions to help keep things quiet inside.

There's even more.

Here are a few more items you'll be taking along this summer if you travel in a new Impala or Chevelle.

A tough acrylic lacquer finish.

A battery with its terminals on the side so corrosion can't build up.

An engine that operates efficiently on no-lead, low-lead, or regular fuel.

Why, on Impala, you even get power steering, power disc brakes and Turbo Hydra-matic transmission—all standard.

A beautiful choice.

We suggest you stop by your Chevrolet dealer's soon, to take a close look at the 1972 Chevelle or Impala.

It's nice to know that whichever way you go, you'll be getting a whole lot of car.

Have a good trip.

Chevrolet. Building a better way to see the U.S.A.

Local ministers at Lutheran confab

WILKES-BARRE — "For Christ and Country" will be the theme of the Mid-Atlantic District Lutheran Laymen's League Convention which will attract delegates and guests to Wilkes-Barre on Friday and Saturday, May 12 and 13.

All day convention sessions will be held Saturday at St. Peter's Lutheran Church, Wilkes-Barre. A dinner meeting will follow at 7:00 p.m.

Delegates from Our Saviour Lutheran Church, Mount Pocono will be Rev. Lawrence E. Kelm and Ken Kunkle, Sr.

The Mid-Atlantic district, encompassing 4,100 members, is one of 43 geographical divisions of the international LLL, an auxiliary organization of The Lutheran Church Missouri Synod. The League has more than 153,000 individual members.

The LLL's major project is The Lutheran Hour, celebrating its 40th anniversary on radio this year. An international broadcast integrated with the church's mission program, The Lutheran Hour is the world's largest non-government-sponsored radio operation.

It has an estimated weekly audience of more than 40 million persons in 125 lands. Locally The Lutheran Hour is heard over WBAX at 7:35 a.m. each Sunday and a Lutheran Hour Rally, with its speaker, The Rev. Dr. Oswald Hoffman, will be held on November 19 at King's College Gym, sponsored by Northeastern Pennsylvania Lutherans.

The League also is co-sponsor, with the Missouri Synod, of a television ministry program, "This is the Life." The program, now in its 20th year, has been recognized in the television industry and today is carried on more than 400 stations, making it one of the most televised programs in the world.

Over the years, the program has been the winner of 25 major awards. It is seen locally on station WBRE, Channel 28, at 10 a.m. Sundays.

In addition, the League carries on a newspaper and magazine advertising program designed to encourage reader response to God's redeeming action in Christ.

Other LLL services include university and seminary scholarships, distribution of devotional aids and witnessing tools, seminars on church-related topics, work-shops on the Christian vocation — God's call to his followers to serve him in every activity and others.

Safety program set for Del-Val

MILFORD — Students at Delaware Valley High School will have front row seats in the school's parking lot when some of their classmates learn the facts of line-on-the-highways today.

Robert E. Smith, driver education instructor, said the event will be in the nature of a test-demonstration, designed to disprove the old notion that a car can be "stopped on a dime."

Two students, a faculty member and a policeman will take turns at the wheel of a specially equipped car and they'll bring it to an emergency stop while traveling at 20, 30 and 40 miles per hour.

The car is equipped so that distances can be measured accurately. An emergency signal light is mounted on the front of the car and three pistols are fastened to the front bumper. Aimed straight at the pavements, the pistols fire bullets of yellow paint which marks the point at which the driver sees the signal slams on the brakes and stops the car.

The automobile is supplied by Nationwide Insurance. A safety engineer for the firm will ride beside the driver and operate the equipment. Nationwide engineers have staged similar Traffic Safety Education programs before more than 7,000 students groups throughout the United States.

The demonstration slated for 1:15 p.m., will be preceded by a student assembly during which students will be briefed on the program and hear an illustrated talk on the importance of driver attitudes.

Production opening at Bangor

BANGOR — Production rehearsals for "Anything Goes" are in final week of preparation for opening night, which is today at 8 p.m. in the Bangor Senior High school auditorium.

Successful performances will be on Saturday, May 13, and the following weekend evenings.

The third all-school musical is under the supervision of Mrs. Natalie Ziegler of the Drama Department and William Stipe of the Music Department.

Students are busily working on construction of the set under the guidance of Richard Pagotto (set construction) and Mary Jo Cerino and Randy Trill (set decor).

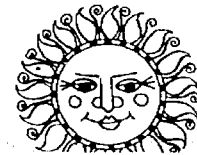

The costume and wardrobe committee under Mrs. Jean Callie and Mrs. Dorothy Sabatine is also working diligently in order to complete some 40 costumes for Friday's premier performance and a school assembly on Thursday featuring selected scenes from the musical.

The revival of this Cole Porter musical involves a sometimes confusing yet always humorous plot dealing with an evangelist turned night club singer (Eve Florian), and her four "angels" (Gwen Brown, Cynthia Dorsey, Shelley Krum, and Leaslie Onjack), a gangster (Rich Pagotto), his female accomplice (Heater Delp), a reserved Englishman (Brad Landon), a broker unknowingly disguised as Public Enemy No. 1 (Danny Petrucelli), a socialite (Kathy LaBarre), and her overly protective mother (Debbie Felker).

Tickets may be bought from anyone in the cast or at the door.

BUSINESS RT. 209, BESIDE THE BURGER QUEEN, EAST STROUDSBURG

Housing need never plainer

Is there a housing shortage in Monroe County? Ask the Better Housing Council of Monroe County, the county Redevelopment Authority, the county Housing Authority, any Stroudsburg or East Stroudsburg official... or Sam Johnson of 38 North Third St., Stroudsburg.

In ironic confirmation of the Better Housing Council's contention Tuesday that inadequate housing plagues Monroe County, The Record learned Wednesday that the Sam Johnson family is living in a house condemned a year ago as unfit for human habitation.

The situation is worse than that. Truman Burnett, borough health officer, admitted not only that he had not been able to find housing for the Johnsons, but that eight more families are living in condemned houses on Beers Street in the borough.

This is a situation that is going to get worse before it gets better. Stroudsburg even now is actively pursuing an urban renewal project for the Stofflet Street area. There are at least 14 families living on Stofflet Street, and they are going to have to move somewhere when and if the project is approved and the bulldozers start moving in.

Where are they going to go? The same place the Johnsons are going now — nowhere. And yet, every time concentrated housing, both public and private, is proposed somewhere in Stroudsburg or East Stroudsburg, compelling reasons are found by nearby residents for not approving the site.

In effect, we're saying, "we need more housing, but not in my neighborhood." Said in enough neighborhoods, and you run out of places to put housing. This problem is one we've swept under the rug long enough. The time has come to stop talking and do something. To do less would be to condemn people to living in hovels because nothing else is available (people in that bind don't make the kind of money most housing around now costs).

It's an old axiom that nothing is done about our problems until they begin to affect the middle class. Well, imprisoning people like Sam Johnson and his family to a condemned house should affect the middle class — right in its conscience.

Light Side Campus wisdom

Colin G. Campbell, youngish president of Wesleyan University, Middletown, has a mother living in Heritage Village, Southbury. In deference to her command, he spoke before the Mens Club, labeled a chauvinistic group by the anti-chauvinists.

The president, from prepared notes, spoke of the plight of the private colleges.

But in "question time" he answered thusly: (taken out of context by the writer and not necessarily true to intent.):

(1) Young people have a lot to say and we need to listen to them.

(2) We need to listen but not necessarily accede. Today the faculty and administrators have more backbone, the lack of which contributed to our previous years of campus disorders.

(3) To today's young people the national scene is discouraging. They are fed up with war, with fighting and the complexities of the nuclear age. They are frustrated by the increasing problems of adjusting to the environment.

(4) Though young people are not choosing the irrational methods of attaining goals, dissatisfaction still remains in our colleges.

(5) You are seeing more students going into pre-law and pre-med and the fields of social concern. Unfortunately most don't want to go into business.

ON CO-EDUCATION:
Most of the questions from the floor indicated a surprising "over-50" male concern with girls in previous all-male schools and its deleterious affect on boys.

Campbell said that today boys don't want to go to schools without girls; that it is educationally healthier with women (most eventually live and marry women).

In response to a question about cohabitation Campbell quoted a current comment: "In our day, the air was clean and sex was dirty. Today sex is clean and the air is dirty."

Better engaged than not

"It's lovely," said the girl as she looked at her friend's engagement ring. "And isn't it nice to know that you aren't marrying a spendthrift?"

The Pennsylvania Story

Engineers in Poconos

HARRISBURG — Engineers from across Pennsylvania are putting their slide rules back into their desk drawers and their hard hats on the shelf for a few days in preparation for a "think tank" get-together in the Keystone State's lush Pocono Mountains.

Starting Thursday, engineers of various types will join with lawmakers from the local, state and federal levels to discuss this question about the technology tax dollar: Where and how can it best be spent?

Do we build more highways or improve the ones we have — or both? How do we handle the mounting mass of solid waste? Air, land and water pollution — can we solve these problems, and, if this is technologically feasible, is John Q. Taxpayer prepared to pay the price tag?

Questions wide-ranging

These are some of the questions to be bandied about at the Professional Forum, centerpiece of the Pennsylvania Society of Professional Engineers (PSPE) 37th annual convention at Pocono Manor this weekend.

Many think of engineering just in terms of highways, bridges and buildings with the emphasis in and around Pennsylvania's major cities.

However, upstate Pennsylvania also gets a hefty slice of the engineering interest pie. Many communities, townships and counties outside of Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and their big-city ilk have municipal engineers, either on a full or part-time basis.

What is their role in small community or township doings?

For example, suppose a small town in upstate Pennsylvania decides it needs a bigger, more powerful firetruck. The money is available and they've got their old firehouse to put it in.

But, as it turns out, the floor of the fire station cannot support the added weight of the more powerful pumper.

At this point, the village fathers would turn to their engineer consultant who would make the necessary inspections and computations and come up with several alternatives — along with their respective price tags.

The alternatives may include: (a) strengthen the flooring of the old firehouse (b) raise the fire station and build a new one elsewhere (c) convert an existing community structure into a fire station, or (d) forgo the new firetruck.

Research helps

Based on this knowledge and research whipped up by the engineer, the community leaders are in a far better position to make their decision about the spanking new pumper.

As far as the engineering "big picture" is concerned, PSPE President Edward B. Stuart, a University of Pittsburgh professor, thinks his profession will be more involved with other facets of decision-making.

"In the past, government and engineers made decisions on technology based on cost and basic safety considerations. Now we are concerned also with aesthetics and social impact of these decisions, Dr. Stuart told this column.

"Involvement" is also a key phrase peppering the conversation of the PSPE's incoming president, Fred S. Faber, Jr., of Harrisburg, who says:

"I will urge that engineers become more publicly involved in those key decisions being made in their communities that could benefit from their technical expertise. I sort of look upon this as our way of paying civic rent."

Certainly this would be most "civil" of the engineers — to say nothing of the "industrial" aspect; it's a bit of an "electrifying" thought, anyway!

Fulbright goal?

WASHINGTON — What in the world does Sen. William Fulbright want to accomplish by trying to kill Radio Liberty and Radio Free Europe? They broadcast to the people of the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe news which they can't otherwise get.

He contends that these Free World radio stations, the only means by which people living under Soviet censorship can get balanced and objective information about what is going on in the world and in their own countries, should be "buried in the graveyard of cold war relics."

There certainly can be honest differences over how these programs beamed behind the Iron Curtain should be financed. But why Sen. Fulbright wants to silence them by cutting off their funds is hard to fathom.

Whatever his purpose, Fulbright's facts are wrong, and, if he succeeds in abetting the information blackout in Russia and Eastern Europe, he will be doing great harm.

He will be arming those Kremlin leaders whose power to resist all social change rests primarily on censorship.

He will be denying to the only liberalizing forces behind the Iron Curtain a means to reach their own fellow citizens and the outside world.

He will be choking off the flow of news and knowledge at a time when Radio Liberty and Radio Free Europe can do the most good.

Busy with Vietnam

Perhaps Fulbright has been so busy with Vietnam that he does not realize that there is a reformist movement in the Soviet Union which is gaining voice and strength and which seeks to win for the Soviet people more freedom and a larger say in their own government.

This demand among professionals and intellectuals in Russia is growing. It is not seeking to overthrow the regime. It is not anti-Communist. It wants social reform and an end to repressive censorship. These Soviets are working for the good of their country as they see it. The radio news programs Fulbright wants to stifle are vital to these Democratic-minded Soviet dissenters. They themselves say so.

The programs of Radio Liberty and Radio Free Europe are not cast in the climate of the cold war. A study of the scripts by the research division of the Library of Congress reached just the opposite conclusion Fulbright hoped it would. It found the programs objective and factual.

Without Radio Liberty, the Soviet people can get little knowledge of what is going on outside or inside Russia which is not filtered through the censors.

A Soviet journalist who left Russia recently has described this censorship in these words:

"Not a single thing can be printed in the Soviet Union, whether it be a book or a postage stamp, a newspaper or a label for a bottle, a magazine or a candy wrapper, unless it has been approved by the censor."

The Soviet people would not know the truth about the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia, the statements of the Chinese at the United Nations or the letter from Soviet Jews to Golda Meir if they weren't broadcast by Radio Liberty.

Funding for Radio Free Europe and Radio Liberty will run out next month. A new appropriation will need to be voted on and approved soon or both will die an untimely death.

Radio Liberty and Radio Free Europe, far from being "relics of the cold war," further allow the free flow of ideas and information where they are most absent.

The Nashville route

By MARION SIMON GARMEL
Dow Jones-Ottaway News Service

Remember the route from stardom to sordid in the old Hollywood? It was said to be paved with double beds. Well, says William Price Fox in his third novel, Ruby Red, the route's the same in the new Nashville.

And if you don't believe it, just watch his heroine, ambitious, redheaded Ruby Jean Jamison of Columbia, S. C. She knows that while the switchboard at Southern Bell Telephone may be good enough for Mary Lou Tyler, it's not good enough for her.

So Ruby starts bedding down — first with wealthy Columbia moonshiner Spider Hornsby, who bankrolls her through charm school; next with the albino songwriter, Jimmy Lee Rideout, who writes her a theme song, changes the image of the act she has put together with her schoolgirl chum, Agnes McCoy, and takes the girls into Nashville over a bumpy trail of roadhouse and church-supper tryouts; and third with the near up-and-coming country-western star, Big Jim Harmon, who promises to sandwich the girls' act into his road show.

But there is one thing in Fox's Nashville that is more important than sex, and that's a good new song. The Nashville boom, Fox implies, has turned that one easy-going country capital into a talent-eating monster.

Any performer there would sell his soul for the catchy new tune that will put him back on top of the record charts. And songwriters?

They all are either written out of saturated with TV melodies. Jimmy Lee, for instance, spends half the book recomposing the Salem commercial.

Yet if you think all this is without redeeming social importance, you haven't reckoned with William Price Fox. He writes about Southern moonshiners, Southern preachers, Southern performers, and Southern songwriters as though he once slept with them.

Novelist Fox now teaches at the Creative Writing Center in Iowa City, Iowa. But he was born a Southern boy. And that, apparently, is something one never forgets.

Woman artist's development

Helen Frankenthaler, by Barbara Rose
(Harry N. Abrams, $25)

The twelfth volume of Abrams' handsome series on contemporary artists is the first devoted to a woman. No better choice than Helen Frankenthaler, one of the most influential painters of the New York school.

Frankenthaler abandoned references to realist imagery in her work about 1952 and has concentrated since on the problem of creating illusions of space through color.

As Frankenthaler matured, she placed more and more limitations on herself in regard to color, abandoning an early playful lyricism for ascetic monumentality. Her spatial effects often are achieved with oils thinned to a wash that satins the canvas and leaves its texture exposed.

This technique has had profound influence on several prominent artists, notably Kenneth Noland and Louis Morris.

Her recent works are landscapes of the spirit to which the viewer can turn again and again with appreciation of the tightrope path this artist has chosen — the question asked but never quite answered.

Critic Barbara Rose has supplied an intimate monograph that documents Frankenthaler's development step by step. The book, of manageable size rare in this period of super-tomes, was designed by artist Robert Motherwell, Frankenthaler's husband. The beautiful color plates are another tribute to Japanese printers.

Tight money 'solution'

The Nixon Recession Caper, by Ralph Maloney. (Norton, $5.95)

The Nixon Recession Caper is an amusing conceit about four substantial suburban citizens with their own solution to the tight money problem.

Investment broker Sanford Campbell guessed wrong about the market; account executive Jack Carmody specialized in cigarette advertising — on television, actor-producer Harry Price was robbed by the distributor of his latest picture, and dress designer Sam Deitch pinned his faith on the midskirt.

So all four were on their uppers, unable because of the recession to lay their hands on the $10,000 that each needed for a new start.

It was Campbell who thought of robbing a bank. He found the others' names on the dues-delinquent list at the exclusive country club to which they all belonged.

Basically, Ralph Maloney's novel is a "big heist" story. What makes it different is his resolution of the situation, paying off in a shootout of a most unexpected kind.

Maloney, a writer whose work includes novels, short stories and satire, has invented four characters with sufficient depth in their personal lives — family problems, individual strengths and weaknesses and social hangups — to make them more than mere caricatures.

This is a satire that is not likely to close Saturday night.

Merry-go-round

New FBI chief

WASHINGTON — Patrick Gray 3rd got off to an unconvincing start as the new boss of the FBI by pleading with newsmen: "None of you guys are going to believe this — and I don't know how to make you believe it — but there are no dossiers or secret files."

We will be happy to tell poor Pat, since he's new around the FBI, where some of the secret files are stashed.

As a starter, he might ask to see the Jane Fonda file, No. 100-459278. The FBI apparently considers the tiny, if sometimes turbulent, Miss Fonda a menace to the nation.

She recently won the Academy Award as Hollywood's best actress. But her most faithful fans are G-men, who monitor her performances around the world and submit detailed reports on her antiwar routines.

The Fonda file is stuffed with reports marked "Confidential" and "Secret." One entry, dated April 30, 1971, is stamped "Top Secret — No Foreign Dissemination — No Dissemination abroad."

This hush-hush document alleges darkly: "Between November 1970 and April 1971, Fonda toured colleges campuses across the country making antiwar speeches. A source advised (the FBI) the North Vietnamese Embassy in Moscow bought a plane ticket for Fonda to travel from the United States to Moscow and Hanoi via Paris on 3-17-71, though the trip was discontinued as all visas to North Vietnam were later cancelled."

Black secret

By perusing the secret FBI files, Pat Gray can also find out who's who and what's new in the black community. There's hardly an important black leader who doesn't rate a full FBI file.

For example, Gray can learn from reading the Coretta King file, No. 100-6351, that the martyred Martin Luther King's widow has hired the Byron Deleatrice agency to "maintain security" at her Atlanta home. This tidbit is stamped merely "Confidential," although there's a lot of equally irrelevant information labeled "Secret."

Or Gray may be interested to discover from a "Secret" entry in the Ralph Abernathy file, No. 100-442706, that King's successor at the Southern Christian Leadership Conference was "considering resigning as President, because of lack of cooperation from officers."

Gray can also keep up with the world travels of James Baldwin, the famous black novelist, by reading file No. 62-108763. An entry, dated Dec. 23, 1969, and marked "Secret — No Foreign Dissemination," confides:

"NY T-1, another government agency which conducts intelligence investigations, advised on July 31, 1969, that James Baldwin arrived at Istanbul, Turkey, from Athens, Greece, via Air France on July 13, 1969."

There followed excerpts from the August 18, 1969, edition of the Turkish newspaper "Milliyet," also stamped a deep, dark "Secret."

Or Gray can read all about the personal affairs of Harry Belafonte, the talented black actor, by snooping through file No. 100-394716. A "Secret" background report starts off with the information that the "subject's true name is Harold George Belafonte."

Movie gossip

The new FBI chief will find all sorts of titillating tidbits in the files of such movie stars as Marlon Brando, Paul Newman, Rock Hudson, Tony Randall, Zero Mostel and others. None of them are accused of any crimes or suspected subversion but the FBI keeps files on them anyway.

Or, if Gray is a football fan, he can glean some fascinating facts from the FBI files on the likes of Joe Namath and Lance Rentzel.

Throughout most FBI files is scattered gossip about the sex lives of the subjects, indicating that the FBI spends considerable time snooping into the bedrooms of prominent people.

If Pat Gray still doubts that the FBI keeps secret files, we will be happy to show him some xeroxed copies.

Mobile, modular housing now regulated by state

HARRISBURG (UPI) — Gov. Milton J. Shapp signed two new laws Thursday placing mobile and modular housing under state regulation for the first time.

"Pennsylvania is now a giant step closer to becoming a major east coast center for the manufacture of factory-built housing, and industry with a multi-billion dollar potential in the next few years," Shapp said.

Under the new laws, all mobile homes sold in the state will have to meet design, construction and utility standards set by the U.S. Standards Institute.

In the case of industrialized housing, the state will conduct in-plant inspections and will work with local governments in overseeing on-site installations of the houses.

Starting in November, all mobile homes sold here will have to display a state seal of inspection.

Shapp said the new laws would encourage builders to open plants in Pennsylvania. His statement came only days after a major housing firm, Parkwood Industries Inc., of Elkhart, Ind., announced it would open a new plant in Mt. Joy which will employ 50 people.

The Department of Community Affairs is in charge of working out the new program of regulations. James Shultz, executive assistant to department secretary William H. Wilcox, said industrialized housing is one of the fastest growing industries in the state.

"We have estimates that up to 100,000 people could be employed in industrialized housing here in the next ten years," Shultz said.

Morgan Edwards, of Philadelphia, has been named to head up Community Affairs' mobile and modular housing programs. He said although most of the housing is meant for lower income families, "many producers say they will use these new laws for producing quality housing, too."

During signing ceremonies in his office, Shapp also announced that he would be releasing a special financing plan by August for stimulating construction of more housing.

"There isn't a place in this state doesn't need new housing," he said. "We will soon have a place in this state that doesn't need new housing he said. "We will soon have a financing plan so we can really start rebuilding our cities."

He did not give any details.

Court overturns contempt charges of Chicago 7

CHICAGO (UPI)—The U.S. Appeals Court Thursday overturned contempt of court convictions of the Chicago Seven defendants, their two attorneys and a Black Panther party leader, imposed at their trial on charges of inciting riots at the 1968 Democratic National Convention.

Three judges of the U.S. 7th circuit Court of Appeals, voted unanimously to overturn the contempt sentences imposed at the 4 1/2-month trial by U.S. District Court Judge Julius J. Hoffman. Hoffman had imposed the contempt sentences for the behavior of the defendants, attorneys William Kunstler and Leonard Weinglass, and Black Panther leader Bobby Seale.

Ex-FHA official indicted by jury

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — A former regional director of the Federal Housing Administration was indicted by a federal grand jury Thursday on charges he received $73,000 in bribes and evaded income tax payments on the same amount.

Two indictments were returned against Thomas J. Gallagher Jr., former director of the FHA's Philadelphia Insuring Office from 1964 to last June, by the grand jury investigating alleged irregularities in FHA programs.

Gallagher's office covered the eastern half of the state as far west as Harrisburg.

Highway death toll 59,215

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Transportation Safety Board estimated Thursday that 59,215 persons lost their lives in transportation accidents in 1971, 55,000 of them in auto mishaps.

The board said its preliminary statistics for last year showed an increase of 421 deaths over the 1970 toll, with an increase of 200 deaths in auto accidents accounting for almost half the total increase.

Other modes of transportation and the 1971 death toll included: A rise in deaths due to airline accidents from 146 to 199; an increase from 1,254 to 1,322 in general aviation light plane crashes; and a climb from 1,418 to 1,582 in deaths due to boating mishaps.

Railroads showed a decrease, with the number of fatalities dropping from 706 in 1970 to 607 in 1971.

Students indicted

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Two University of Pennsylvania students were indicted by a federal grand jury Thursday in connection with use of an illegal "blue box" to make toll-free long-distance telephone calls.

The indictment identified the students as Thomas D. Johnston, 19, of Port Huron, Mich., and his roommate, Alexander D. Daspi, 18, Baton Rouge, La.

The students were charged with using the electronic device, which permits the user to bypass toll call operators, to make thousands of dollars worth of long-distance calls.

Voter residency changed

HARRISBURG (UPI) — Secretary of State C. DeLores Tucker Thursday ordered the 90- and 60-day voter residency requirements eliminated in Pennsylvania.

"Any voter who is otherwise qualified and affirms that he or she will be a resident of the state of Pennsylvania on the date of the next election must be permitted to register," Mrs. Tucker advised local election officials by letter.

Her action follows an opinion delivered Monday by Attorney General J. Shane Creamer which stated that a recent U.S. Supreme Court decision, Dunn vs Blumstein, takes legal precedence over state residency requirements.

The Supreme Court has ruled that a voter only must be a citizen of the United States for one month prior to an election for which he is registering.

Jobless aid being increased

HARRISBURG (UPI) — The Insurance Department has approved a 38.6 rate increase in workmen's compensation insurance.

Insurance Commissioner Herbert S. Denenberg said the rate hike was due solely to the increase in workmen's compensation benefits passed this year by the General Assembly.

He said the last overall increase was in 1968.

Walter J. Cummings—made its ruling on the basis of a U.S. Supreme Court decision requiring a trial judge to let a different judge impose contempt sentences if they were given at the conclusion of a trial.

In the case of Seale, the appeals court said four of the 16 different acts of contempt on which Hoffman sentenced him were "legally insufficient." The appeals court dropped them from any new trial.

Defendants in the trial were Yippies Abbie Hoffman and Jerry Rubin; David Dellinger; Rennie Davis; Thomas Hayden, John Froines and Weiner.

The trial was marked by a good deal of verbal conflict between the defendants and Judge Hoffman. The defendants said the judge was prejudiced against them. The judge said the defendants were purposefully disruptive and were trying to effect a mistrial. He criticized the attorneys for their tactics in defending the trial.

Six weeks into the trial, Hoffman ordered Seale bound and gagged after he demanded loudly he wanted San Francisco attorney Charles Garry to defend him. Hoffman had started the trial without Garry, who was ill when it began.

Other contempt sentences included: two years, five months and 16 days for Dellinger; two years, one month and 23 days for Rubin; two years, one month and 18 days for Davis; one year, eight months and five days for Weinglass; eight months for Abbie Hoffman; and 6 1/2 months for Froines.

Shapp promises changes

LCB reduces state markup on wines

HARRISBURG (UPI) — Gov. Milton J. Shapp announced a six per cent price cut on all wines Thursday and promised to remove wine sales from the state "monopoly."

The governor told a news conference the Liquor Control Board (LCB) has agreed to reduce the state markup on wines from 58 per cent to 48 per cent, effective June 1.

The net savings to the consumer will be about six per cent, he said. The estimated loss to the state is $5 million.

"It is our expectation, though," Shapp said, "that there will be an increase in sales that will reduce this $5 million to a much lower figure or possibly that there will be no loss to the state by adding extra volume."

Asked if he supports proposals to remove wine from the state liquor stores, Shapp replied:

"I see it being taken out of the monopoly operation in our state liquor stores and offered for sale in specialty shops throughout the state."

"There are hundreds and hundreds of brands which the public is demanding. The state liquor stores cannot offer the variety the public demands."

He said the state liquor stores could continue to handle a "few brands" of wine.

Shapp said the LCB, which recently held its first public hearing on a proposed price increase, will hold more hearings in the future. The board, he said, "will ask the distillers and producers to appear and publicly justify and additional price increases they are now demanding."

The LCB recently ordered two consecutive liquor price increases—one in February and another in March.

Gov. Shapp also promised to introduce a bill next week that would abolish the Milk Marketing Board's price-setting activities and let milk prices drop to their own level.

He said the board is scheduling hearings in Scranton and Philadelphia to determine whether those areas can get a milk price cut. A 12 cent per gallon reduction has gone into effect in Western Pennsylvania.

Jack O'Brian's

New York's Voice of Broadway

NEW YORK — Retired N.Y. detective Eddie Egan (just reinstated in court for his pension after an attempted kibosh by jealous top-cops because of Eddie's "The French Connection" film) has the Big Jackpot in sight: a TV series based on Egan's 5,000 narcotics-arrests. . . . Irony: Eddie won't play himself — H'wood decided he's not the TV type.

Just divorced from jazzman Max Roach, thrush Abbey Lincoln's new romance is fine actor James Earl Jones. . . . Gen'l Motors is unloading its own N.Y. area Cadillac showrooms; the Caddy franchise in the Bronx will go to a Chicago dealer who fills the new criteria — he's black. . . . Caddy veterans Bill Daley and Hank Erhardt tried to get it but missed by a tint. . . . Victor Potemkin (Chevy dealer in Newark, Philly and Miami) gets the rich Manhattan Caddy outlets at York Ave. & 61st St. and 11th Ave. at 55th.

Fifth Ave. bluecoats are last-ditch fighting sidewalk peddlers — with a large closed police truck with mechanical loading platform into which are stuffed the law-busting pretzel and chestnut vendors and hustlers of cheap jewelry, belts etc. . . . Fifth Ave. was starting to look like a flea market.

Former Bdwy. mobster Phil "Farvel" Kovelik, a much-arrested Meyer Lansky pistol, got his in Florida. His long-gone body (we noted months ago he'd been erased) was just found in a pit with one sure-pop .22 bullet in his brain. . . . The retroactive irony: Farvel in the 30s (when he was a mob collector and "hit man") lived after a .38 bullet lodged in his very thick skull. . . . The import of his gangland passing has special significance — he was high in Meyer Lansky's "Jewish Mob"; Lansky's value to the U.S. syndicate now is nil; ex-Newark top-mobster Doc Stacher also took voluntary deportation when he learned the Mafia no longer was too choked up about his huge cash influx. We heard one gang had opine "hasn't he piled up enough money? Why doesn't he let someone else get some?" Such open opinion would not have been so casually flung if his domestic rule weren't near an end. Doc took the hint and lives, luxuriously, in Israel and France.

Jack Collins, a fine clown who stepped into "Funny Thing" at the Forum when co-star Lou Parker landed in the hospital day before the smash opening here, suddenly is gone from the show. His replacement isn't the ill Lou Parker; Why, daddy?

Watching Shelley Winters on the Carson Show with Rickles & Newhart, you realize why she plays those slattern roles so superbly. . . . She waited until Clark Gable and Errol Flynn were dead a while before leering about her long-ago escapades. She's a cad.

Poor dead film star Gia Scala was a Stork Club hat-chick when we knew her a few heartbreaks ago. . . . The new Episcopal Bishop of N.Y., Rt. Rev. Paul Moore, and his wife joined the sad diocese of Spillville. . . . Football Commish. Pete Rozelle's idyl with Jeanne Murray Vanderbilt, Alf's beautiful ex-wife, didn't go into overtime.

Bdwy.'s stage blintzes keep flopping: "Ring Around the Bathing" is a $100,000 bad memory; "The Little Black Book" an $80,000 disaster, Gore Vidal's "Evening With Richard Nixon" a $200,000 mistake. . . . And "Different Times," with book, music and lyrics by Michael Brown (about a dynastic family through wars, bastards, anti-Semitism and other drably created mawkish messages), joins the disaster parade. . . . Brown is a veteran of industrial shows, and we heard one Brownphile note in sudden aural recognition, "The music sounds as if it had been taken from the J.C. Penney show!" Well — put it back!

We feel about New York as we do about the Ringling Bros., Barnum & Bailey Circus in many ways: often we take it for granted, ignore the city as we dash between first nights, nightclubs, dinners, late-night klatches at P.J.'s etc.; then we suddenly see Manhattan through someone else's eyes as we saw the circus years ago after neglecting it for some years, through the enchanted eyes of our tiny daughters. . . . It was a totally marvelous new Big Top once again.

The other evening we were tour guide for our physician from Rome, Dottori Nino Cantera, and his wife who'd never been to the U.S. before. . . . They only had a few nights in New York — then off to Philly, Washington, Niagara Falls (called it "Nee-ah-gah-rah") and Boston — so we couldn't take them to all the great restaurants. They were sightseeing all the Manhattan splendors daytimes — Empire

State Bldg., Wall St., the Metropolitan Museum of Art, Harlem, etc. — so we escorted them to two of our finest — "21" and The Rainbow Room.

In "21" they saw the standard stage and screen stars, assorted industrial giants (president of Gen'l Motors etc.) and then the Canteras took the "speakeasy tour" of "21" into cavernous cellars where thousands of great vintages have been stored by some of the famous Yankee names — including an international "name" who laid down some bottles of Dom Perignon, a splendid champagne — Richard Nixon — and then they stepped into the perfectly camouflaged foot-thick wall, which contains an amazingly balanced door, so solid it gives off no hollow bang when pounded upon. . . . It once cloaked the "21" stocks of whiskey, wines, cognacs and other bottled treasures without once having suffered a Prohibition raid.

It was an eye-opening tour for a couple of people whose country never suffered the uncivilized deprivations inflicted by an Andrew Volstead, fantastic insight into what made bootleggers run so efficiently back in the days when the late Jack Kriender and Charlie Berns founded the stately institution of "21"

Our other choice for the Canteras was The Rainbow Room in Radio City atop Rockefeller Center. . . . This spectacular 'cafe constructed in superb Bauhaus style more than 35 years ago remains Manhattan's most spectacularly beautiful restaurant, with no peer. . . . The mirrored and metal decor remains resistant to the thumbnose of time, its view the finest, the lights of Manhattan and our surrounding bridges and rivers an unduplicated entertainment.

Capt. Peter Townsend, Princess Meg's used-to-be, dined incognito at deMedici. Maybe his last time — he starts a TV celebrity show here soon, and there goes privacy. . . . The Cole Porter smash "DuBarry Was a Lady" gets its first revival since its '39 longrun at the Equity Library Theater May 4 (103rd St. at Riverside Dr.). It can't have Bert Lahr and Ethel Merman this time, but it has that marvelous Porter score. . . . Joan Rivers isn't crushed by the critics who justifiably moldered her recent Broadway comedy disaster: she's finished the first draft of a movie script with Gail Parent. . . . Who was it said Big Bands are dead: Harry James packed 3,700 embraceable dancers into Roseland. Which wants him back in a hurry.

Food nuts irritate

Dear Ann Landers: Please tell me what is happening in our society to make everyone so weight- and calorie-conscious. I've had women who are darned near strangers tell me they lost four inches last month. This morning the elevator operator confided between the first and fifth floor that she has lost five pounds. The guy whose desk is behind me asked me this noon what I usually dream about. When I told him, "None of your business," he looked surprised and said, "I dream about strawberry shortcake."

This afternoon at about 3 o'clock I felt a little weary so I went to the vending machine and bought a candy bar. The woman whose desk is across from mine looked up and said, "You don't need that. A couple of carrots would be a lot better for you." I told her they don't sell carrots in the hall. She suggested I bring some from home. I lost my cool and said I wasn't interested in a lecture on nutrition. She snapped back, "The people who need it never are."

Please explain this sudden interest from the health nuts.

Not Starving

Dear Not: These people aren't so nuts. We've learned a lot about nutrition these past 20 years and it's helping to prevent heart attacks and other diet-related diseases. Women who starve themselves for vanity's sake are balmy, but it's smart to eat sensibly, exercise regularly and watch your weight.

Dear Ann Landers: I'll come right to the point and hope you will, too. Joe and I went together two years before we were married in a church. We talked about having a family. The idea appealed to him a lot in our courting days. "A boy for me and a girl for you" — in fact he said he'd like three or four kids.

Now, a year later, he says he's changed his mind. He claims his brother's kids make him nervous. He has decided that we aren't going to have any children — not even adopted ones. The thought of a life without a family upsets me terribly. I feel as if I have been betrayed. Whenever I see a tiny baby I have to fight back the tears. Please help me.

23 and Miserable in Montana

Dear Montana: If you're miserable now, wait awhile. Your misery will grow with your resentment. Frankly, I don't see how you can find peace and contentment with this man. Discuss the problem with the clergyman who married you and ask him to guide you.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently you printed a letter from O-Hi-O who wanted to know what ordinary, everyday people can do about pollution and the ruin of our environment. When I read that letter I recognized a terrific opportunity to let the world know about our non-profit group of dedicated people who are working tirelessly to preserve our environment and the quality of life. This group was formed less than two years ago by ten concerned Americans, including Apollo astronaut Walt Cunningham and Apollo 9 astronaut Rusty Schweickart.

"Awareness" is our middle name. "Earth, I care" is our motto. When enough concerned adults and young people join forces to get a job done, there's no stopping them. Please, Ann, tell anyone who is interested to write to Earth Awareness Foundation, 350 Grove Street, Somerville, New Jersey 08876. Enclose a self-addressed stamped envelope. We've got lots of ideas. What we need now is people who will help us.

John Hart

(Author of comic strips, Wizard of Id and B.C.)

Dear Johnny: I dig Earth and I'm with you, friend. Good luck.

How much do you know about pot, LSD, cocaine, speed, meth, uppers and downers, glue and heroin? Are all these drugs dangerous? Get Ann Landers' new booklet, "Straight Dope on Drugs." For each booklet ordered, send a dollar bill plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (16 cents postage) to Ann Landers, Box 3346, Chicago, Ill. 60654.

Erma Bombeck

Average life span

The average life span of a refrigerator light is 37 years, four months and eighteen hours.

We have replaced three bulbs within the last two years. This is due to the fact that every fifteen minutes, the two giant doors swing open (one for the freezer and one for the refrigerator) and my son stands there motionless staring at the contents like he is awaiting the second coming.

Seeing him look from one side of the box to the other, it always seems like he should be saying something like, "I suppose you are all wondering why I have gathered you here," but there is nothing. Only cold, silent appraisal.

The other night, as I threw an afghan over my feet to break the chill from the open refrigerator, I yelled out to him, "Why don't you let those poor leftovers deteriorate in peace?"

"I'm looking for something," he said.

"And you're gonna get it," I threatened. "Now shut that door."

"There's never anything to eat in this house."

"Then how come we are the only 6-garbage-can family on our block? Besides, you can't possibly be hungry. You just got up from the table."

"That was an hour ago," he grumbled.

"Shut the door!"

"Can I have an ice cube?"

"I suppose so," I said tiredly. Minutes later, I heard the blender going and went out to investigate. The counter top was spread like a Roman orgy feast with French bread, olives, lunch meat, cheese, dips — and a malt frothing in the blender. "I thought you only wanted an ice cube," I said.

"You can't eat an ice cube by itself," he said, sinking his teeth into a sandwich.

This Mother's Day, give her something nobody else can give her.

You don't have to spend a lot of money on your mother.
Just a little time.

Because what she wants more than anything else is you. Her children, all around her.

Mothers are like that.

If you'd like to take her out to dinner,
we'd be proud to be a part of your day.
And we'll make sure everything's perfect, right down to the fresh flowers on the table.

But you really don't even have to do that, to show her you care.

The best gift you can give her is a little love.

To your mother, and to ours, nothing but the best.

The Slim Gourmet

By BARBARA GIBBONS
For a dessert that's drunk with flavor, even though it's nonalcoholic and low in calories, discover what brandy can do for peaches!

Brandy itself is pretty potent, calorie-wise — about 80 calories an ounce, so it's probably off-limits as a beverage. But a few teaspoons of brandy drizzled on fruit adds barely 20 calories, and a lot more flavor punch than the calories would indicate! Now, if you ignite it, you'll light up the sky with a minor miracle: most of the brandy calories will disappear! They evaporate, along with the alcohol.

At only seven calories a teaspoon, bottled brandy flavoring lets you add the essence of brandy without the alcohol calories — no pyrotechnics needed!

Slim Gourmet Branded Peach Sherbet
2 cups canned low-calorie peaches
1 envelope plain gelatin
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
2 teaspoons brandy
flavoring
pinch of salt (optional)
sugar substitute to equal 2 tablespoons sugar

Drain peaches and measure out 1½ cups juice (add water if needed). Combine juice, lemon and gelatin in saucepan. Cook and stir over moderate flame until gelatin is completely dissolved. Put peaches through a sieve. Combine all ingredients and mix well. Pour in a shallow bowl and freeze one hour. Remove and beat on high speed until fluffy. Freeze for one more hour. Makes eight servings, 25 calories each.

Branded Peach Chiffon Pie
9-inch crumb crust (recipe below)
1 envelope plain gelatin
4 tablespoons cold water
1½ cups skimmed milk
5 teaspoons sugar
pinch of salt
3 eggs, separated
2 teaspoons brandy
flavoring
sweetener to equal 2 tablespoons sugar
1 can (8 ounces) low-calorie peaches

Soften gelatin in cold water. Combine milk, sugar, salt and beaten egg yolks in a saucepan (or the top of a double-boiler). Cook and stir over a very low flame until mixture thickens slightly. Stir in gelatin, brandy and sweetener; stir well. Chill until mixture begins to set slightly. Beat egg whites until stiff and fold into gelatin mixture. Drain peaches and chop

Clearview p-t council adds to equipment

STROUDSBURG — Upon recommendation of principal Ralph Knauf, the Clearview Council of Parents and Teachers has agreed to sponsor rental and eventual purchase of a new sound system for the building, to be installed by the beginning of the 1972-73 school year.

The action was taken at the organization's last business meeting of the current year, held Monday night in conjunction with the annual auction.

Mrs. Jean DeSchraver, chairman of the playground committee, announced the success of the first neighborhood work day in April, during which nearly 80 persons volunteered their time in beginning expansion of Clearview's playground-park facilities.

In addition to construction of four oversized picnic tables, tire tunnels, painted games on the blacktop surface and clearance of four truckloads of rocks, materials have been purchased for more equipment to be erected this summer.

A new $400 geodesic climbing dome has been ordered and the council authorized an additional $300 to be used at the discretion of the playground committee to accomplish further expansion before September.

Ratification of the new constitution was finalized upon presentation by by-laws committee chairman Peter Nevins. A new constitution was necessary because of the council's past withdrawal from the national Parents and Teachers Association.

The slate of new officers presented by the nominating committee for the 1972-73 school year was unanimously accepted.

Those reelected for a second term of office were Dr. Richard DeSchraver, president, and Mrs. Jean DeSchraver, playground committee chairman. New officers are: Peter Nevins, vice president; Mrs. Beverly Dalling, recording secretary; Mrs. Ann Weiler, corresponding secretary; Bruce Anderson, treasurer; John Fessick, membership chairman; Mrs. Gail Nevins, publicity chairman.

Robert Raesly, apprentice auctioneer, donated his services for the auction which followed the business meeting.

Refreshments were served to Marion and Susan Peechatka, Joan Watson, Rosemary Vetter, Betty Evans, Stella Hartshorn, Lorraine Hay, Ethel Hartshorn, Lorraine and Debbie Anglemeyer, Alice and Margie Teada, Clara Smith, Georgiann Rovito, Connie Sydelnic, M'Liss Smith, Claudette Seager, Lucille Teada and daughters.

Just Between Us—

By Bobby Westbrook

What I'm doing sitting in the office beside a huge shopping bag of mittens in all colors — 119, more or less — is gloating — especially for the Woman's Club Well Baby Clinic for which they were knitted as a result of stories in Family Fare.

Florence Watson, who works for Chemical Bank of New York, has been spending her vacations in the Poconos for 30 years. Since she loves to keep busy, had all this wool left over from afghans and baby ponchos and stuff, she kept right on knitting and brought the whole batch up on this vacation.

She apparently has a heart as big as her frame, and in one of her projects of "keeping busy", learned Braille. As a result, she is now handling the accounts of about 130 of the bank's blind depositors.

She was all excited about going on radio on the WHN "Out of Sight" program on May 28 to tell how the program works and how proud she is of the accomplishments of her clients.

Anyway it was a heartwarming incident on what turned out to be a pretty chilly day. I have a feeling that this is going to be one of those years when we sail right into summer.

Meanwhile, I'm just as glad to watch the weather from behind glass, to discover what kind of flowering trees I'm surrounded by, and to welcome my first indigo bunting which is a very appealing little bird.

May bride-to-be honored at shower

EAST STROUDSBURG — Miss Valerie Morehouse, who will become the bride of James Kunkle on May 26, was the guest of honor at a bridal shower held at the home of Mrs. John Kunkle, 607 North Courtland St.

Guests included Mrs. Dee Morehouse, Eloise Amie, Debbie Kindt, Sharon Jadick, Tara Marean, Mrs. Florence Zateeny, Mimi Zateeny, Mrs. Mary Pace, Mrs. Debbie Houser, Mrs. Dolores Kunkle, Mrs. Joan Kunkle, Mrs. Ruth Kunkle, Mrs. Donna Eckley, Mrs. Blanche Newman, Mrs. Emily Kinnaman and Mrs. Mary Lambert. Mrs. Marion Kunkle also sent a gift.

Do everything but smell

Mines super-sophisticated

By BYRON E. CALAME

Dow Jones-Ottaway News
WASHINGTON — They are silent, unseen and deadly — and nothing at all like the spiny steel balls you've seen bobbing in the water on some old war movie.

They are the U.S. mines now ringing North Vietnam's major ports, and they are incredibly more sophisticated than their World War II counterparts.

Long, cylindrical and loaded with complicated fuses and timing devices, they look like torpedoes, and they can do almost everything but smell the ships they're designed to destroy.

This is the Navy's first big mining operation since World War II, and weapons-makers have used all that time to develop cunning devices that will undoubtedly pose devilish problems for the North Vietnamese, or possibly the Russians, assigned to clear them away.

The mines of 30 years ago were simply dumped into the

Graves receives state position

HARRISBURG — The state commander of the World War I veterans, Forrest L. Graves of Stroudsburg, has been picked by Gov. Milton Shapp for appointment to the State Veterans Commission.

Graves was nominated to succeed Phillip M. Schaff, of Rockwood, who resigned. The nomination needs Senate confirmation.

Board meeting

EAST STROUDSBURG — The East Stroudsburg Area Board of Education will meet at 8 p.m. Monday, May 15 in the junior-senior high school library for the purpose of sending out invitations to bid on supplies, and to conduct other business. The regular meeting will be followed by an executive session.

Ecology meeting

EAST STROUDSBURG — The monthly meeting of the Monroe County Environmental Action Group is scheduled for Tuesday, May 16 at 8 p.m. at the home of president Mrs. Jeannette Saurina, 98 Smith St., East Stroudsburg.

Star trio

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Ben Gazzara, Eddie Albert and Ricardo Montalban will star in "Division Headquarters," a two-hour ABC-TV movie produced by Frank (Patton) McCarthy.

Paulette's back

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Paulette Goddard emerged from 18 years of retirement in Europe to play a cameo role in the television movie, "The Snoop Sisters."

'Love Story' didn't just happen

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Among the strangest tales behind the celluloid curtain is the success and history of "Love Story," one of the five most profitable motion pictures ever made.

While Paramount executives took bows, Erich Segal's novel became a best-seller and Ryan O'Neal and Ali MacGraw established themselves as film stars, the real credit escaped the man responsible for the saga.

He is Howard Minsky, an agent for the William Morris outfit when the strange odyssey of "Love Story" began.

"I decided at age 55 with my experience I should be able to make a picture on my own," Minsky said. "So I bought a property that was so bad William Morris (the largest talent agency) wouldn't handle it."

"In the beginning 'Love Story' was a screenplay about a Jewish family. I didn't want a typical Jewish family story, even though I'm Jewish. I made Jenny, the heroine, Italian instead."

"Then I convinced Erich to change the setting from Brooklyn to New England and removed the nudity, sex and four-letter words."

"I had Segal rewrite the script nine times."

"We showed it to every studio and producer in town. No one would touch it. They told me I was insane. But I knew we had an honest, old-fashioned love story, one that didn't need sex and violence."

"Then Ali MacGraw saw it and said she wouldn't do any other picture. It was sent to Bob Evans at Paramount and a deal was made. Then I asked Erich to write a novel and publish it before we made the picture to strengthen our boxoffice potential."

"The book came out in February, 1970. We released the picture December, 1970."

"Well, we got back $2,242,000 in the first three days. That's what the picture cost. Then Evans and Paramount asked me to sell the picture abroad, distribute it and set an ad campaign hoping for a $20 million gross."

According to Minsky, a handsome, rugged man, he covered 37,000 miles in three months selling the picture the world over.

He puts it this way: "My percentage of the picture is so great that I won't be able to spend all the money in my lifetime."

Still, movie-goers could do worse than remember the name Minsky, as in Howard Minsky, the man who really put "Love Story" together.

Golden Deeds recipient man of many activities

EAST STROUDSBURG — This year's recipient of the East Stroudsburg Exchange Club's Golden Deeds Award is a quiet, unassuming man who tackles the most difficult jobs with the utmost diffidence, gets the job done, and creates little fanfare in the process.

He is Rev. Norman R. Savage, who has been pastor of the First Baptist Church in East Stroudsburg for the last 30 years.

During his pastorate, the church has been enlarged and completely renovated. The church boasts a loyal and active membership, one whose Christian charity makes itself felt through the thousands of dollars it gives each year to various missions.

Rev. Savage not only has led his church successfully — challenge enough for many men — but has undertaken a number of extra-curricular activities as well. He has served as program chairman of the Monroe County Sunday School Assn., dean of the East Stroudsburg Community Vacation School, chairman of the board of the Anxes Evangelical Mission and has served on the board of the

Rev. Norman R. Savage

Visiting Nurse Assn. and the Community Chest.

Not content with that contribution to the community, Rev. Savage serves the entire community as chaplain of the General Hospital of Monroe County. He has done much in that capacity to encourage the afflicted, aid the suffering and console the bereaved, all of which he considers to be simply a part of his duty to his fellow Christians.

Rev. Savage began his commitment at 19, when he served as a part-time clergyman in his native Philadelphia in order to earn the funds to complete his clerical education. Through his diligent efforts, he organized the Rhaunhurst Baptist Church of Philadelphia in an old garage. Meetings were held weekly with the light provided by the automobiles parked outside the garage doors.

During his 11-year ministry there, the church grew from eight adults to 86 members. The membership then constructed their own church building. By the time Rev. Savage left, a $32,000 debt was liquidated and today the Rhaunhurst Baptist Church is an important adjunct to Philadelphia's religious community.

Rev. Savage will be honored at the Exchange Club's annual Golden Deeds Award dinner May 22 at the Henryville House. Tickets for the dinner are available from Counterman's Drugstore, LeBar's Drugstore, the A.B. Wyckoff Department Store, Rea & Derrick, Stroudsburg and from any member of the Exchange Club.

Illustrated BIBLE LESSON

By Alfred J. Buescher

TAKING His turn at reading from the prophets during the Sabbath service at the Nazareth synagogue, Jesus read Isaiah's prophecy regarding the Messiah. — Luke 4:16-18.

WHEN HE had finished He identified Himself as the "anointed one" of Isaiah's prophecy, the one sent by God to redeem His people. — Luke 4:19-21.

THE CHURCHES must send preachers to proclaim the gospel, for men cannot call upon, nor believe in, a God of whom they know nothing. — Romans 10:14-15.

BECAUSE faith comes from hearing God's word, the gospel message must be proclaimed world-wide. — Romans 10:16-18.

No theological ban

Why not women as priests?

By United Press International

The Roman Catholic Church has been told by one of its best-known theologians there are "no decisive theological reasons" for barring women from ordination to the priesthood.

This position is taken by Father Hans Kung, professor of theology at Tubingen University in Germany, in a book just published in America (by Doubleday) under the title: "Why Priests?"

The title is misleading, Fr. Kung, who previously stirred controversy by questioning papal infallibility, does not go so far as to suggest that priests are unnecessary.

But he does argue that it's unnecessary and undesirable for the Church's priesthood to be "exclusively male."

"Full participation of women in the Church's life, on the basis of equal rights, is something that belongs to a suitably renewed Church today," he says.

"This means not only including women as coresponsible in the different advisory and decision making bodies ... but also the admission of women to all the Church's special ministries and to ordination."

He acknowledges that some "socio-cultural reasons have been advanced against the ordination of women," but says "no decisive theological reasons have been presented" why the priesthood should remain "a men's association."

The early Church of the New Testament era was far ahead of its time in its attitude toward equality for women, Kung says. But churches today "are limping along behind our time." And its no excuse to say that some people would be shocked or upset by women priests because experience in the political realm clearly demonstrates that "inhibitions and objections regarding the full equality of women, explicable in terms of social psychology, can be overcome in the course of time."

Kung also sees no justification for maintaining the rule of compulsory celibacy for Catholic priests. Although Pope Paul has adamantly refused to consider any change in the celibacy rule adopted by the Church in the Middle Ages, Kung says "an increasing majority among the Catholic clergy and laity is convinced that celibacy can be defended only as a freely embraced calling and not as a universally binding law."

Although celibacy is not the only, and perhaps not the most important, factor in recent defections from the priesthood, Kung says, it certainly is one component of the "crisis of the Church's ministry."

Take your problems to Church this week — millions leave them there!

Nixon drug crackdown sets record pot confiscations

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI)—The Nixon administration's crackdown on narcotics smugglers is resulting in record marijuana confiscations this spring along the U.S.-Mexican border.

William F. Hughes, a Boston native heading a U.S. Customs Agency team that patrols 450 miles of the border, said the loads of weed being brought from a "bumper crop" of marijuana in Mexico are getting larger and the smugglers are getting more cunning. "The people we're dealing with now are well organized, well financed," he said. "A guy working on a master's degree during the week is liable to kill you if you catch him on the weekend with a thousand pounds of grass."

"We're trying to stop mountains of marijuana coming into this country," Hughes said. "We're dealing with organized crime by so-called 'nice kids.' A nice looking guy who looks like a college professor may be moving a thousand pounds of grass. It's far more sophisticated and a hell of a lot more people are involved."

Since 1970, when the Nixon administration instituted the first expansion of customs since the Calvin Coolidge era, the number of investigators has been tripled nationally to about 1,000—a large number of which are operating along the U.S.-Mexican border where most smuggled marijuana crosses.

Hughes' district — running from Sullivan City, Tex., in the Lower Rio Grande Valley to above Amistad Dam in the Big Bend area of Texas—seized nearly seven tons of marijuana the first three and a half months this year. This compares with 10 tons of the illegal weed confiscated in the district in all of 1971, a record year when 88 tons of marijuana were seized by customs nationally.

"There definitely has been an increase in traffic," he said. "There's a bumper crop of weed in Mexico this year and everybody and his goat is getting into the act. "Air smuggling right now is the major problem we have. It is very difficult to stop it without information. Unless you've got intelligence, there's not much you can do about it."

Hughes said starting in 1965-66, airplanes became important to smugglers for transporting contraband narcotics into the country. Before that, he said, most of the sales were made along the border and the pickup men sent to make the buy were easily seen.

Hughes said the lust for quick profits — marijuana can be bought in Mexico for $10 a pound in the interior and sold in the United States for $100 a pound bulk—has brought hordes of parttime smugglers into the act.

"Some say they get rich in a year and retire," Hughes said. And he said the fear of losing large investments is causing smugglers to resist arrest even more.

"They're shooting more now. All these bloody smugglers have two-way radios and guns," Hughes said.

To combat the problem, Hughes' force covering the Texas points of Del Rio, Eagle Pass, Falcon Heights, Laredo, Lubbock and San Antonio in the past year were linked with "sector communications." This latest communications development puts any customs agent traveling on land or in the air in contact immediately with any law enforcement agency or telephone in the country 24 hours a day and seven days a week.

Customs also is making good use of the "convoy," which it invented, to nab narcotics rings all over the country. The convoy involves catching the "mule," a pickup man, as he crosses the border with narcotics, then trailing him to his delivery point and arresting all involved. Seizures have been made in Detroit, Los Angeles, Chicago, San Francisco and other cities by using the method in his district, Hughes said.

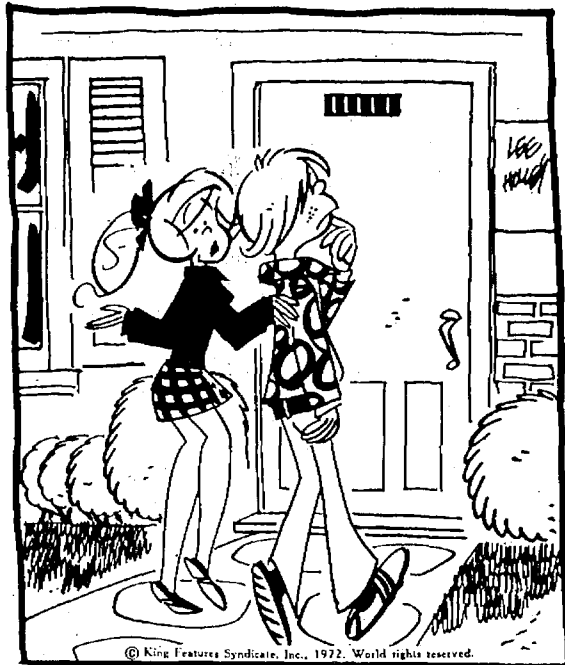

"We've made a number of controlled deliveries," he said.

"It's the single most important tactic outside of undercover intelligence." Customs also has money to pay informers for information.

Through April 17, District 7 agents had arrested 435 persons this year, compared with 866 in all of 1971, and confiscated 1,114 grams of cocaine and 889 grams of heroin besides the marijuana.

"There's no way of telling what percentage we are catching," Hughes said. "But we're sure putting a dent in it."

One millionth honeymoon couple arrives in Poconos

STROUDSBURG — For most people, their honeymoon is a very significant occasion in their lives. However, for one newlywed couple, their honeymoon has become a history-making event.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald R. Binette, of Biddeford, Me., who were married May 6, will probably never forget their honeymoon, and they have good reason not to. They were honored Thursday for being the one millionth honeymoon couple to begin their new lives as husband and wife in the Pocono Mountains.

The Binettes arrived in the Pocono Mountains Thursday afternoon. They will be spending the first week of their

The bathtub of one of the Beers Street residents sits idle and filled with seat cushions and other paraphernalia because the water does not drain from the tub. Seven families on the Stroudsburg street have been ordered to move this month because they are residing in condemned houses.

7 families must move because homes are unfit

STROUDSBURG — Seven families living on Beers Street, Stroudsburg, were told March 10 their homes were unfit for human habitation.

They say they don't know where they will go when they are evicted.

No one else seems to know either.

Five houses and two trailers were condemned by the joint codes enforcement officer during a systematic sweep of the West Main Street area in search of building codes violations.

According to enforcement officer Mitchell Strunk, the homes were deemed unfit for human habitation for a variety of reasons. He said inadequate hot water, running water, ventilation, space, rotten floors, leaky roofs and unstable foundations caused the condemnations.

What happens if the people are not out of the houses after the allotted 30 days?

"I honestly can't answer that," Strunk said. "We have the authority to put the people out on the street, but this is something nobody wants to do."

Can you categorically say the people will not be put out on the street?

Strunk: "No."

He said the Monroe County Redevelopment Authority is trying to locate homes for the people and has interviewed them to determine their needs.

Bad street

The codes officer characterized the Beer Street area as one of the three worst in the borough. He said he didn't expect to run into a similar situation until later this year in the Stofflet Street area, and again when the inspections hit the borough's First Ward.

In the meantime, things look dismal from Beers Street. The people renting the houses and trailers have been told they must leave this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Todd Miller and their three small children live at the end of the street in a three-room trailer.

They pay $45 monthly to Mrs. Gladys Kipp. They have only cold water and a coal stove in the living room-bedroom for heat.

Mrs. Miller said they are supposed to move this week from the trailer that has been their home for more than a year.

"We don't have anywhere to go and we don't want to move," Mrs. Miller said. She thinks the borough should provide low-cost housing.

Next door, Mr. and Mrs. Russell A. DeVor live in a condemned house with three rooms and a bath. There is no hot water and the bathtub won't drain.

They say they pay $100 a month to Mrs. Kipp, who has asked them to move. They don't know where. DeVor said his three sons live with them. Lights and coal are not included in the rent.

Across from the DeVors live Mr. and Mrs. William Smith and their 14-year-old daughter Betty. Betty said they pay $72 a month to Richard Snyder and everything in the house works.

For $40 a month Mr. and Mrs. William Jones rent a house without hot water and a faulty toilet. "I've been hunting, but the rent is just too high," Mrs. Jones said.

In back of the Jones house are Mr. and Mrs. Kenny Crawn. Crawn said he doesn't know why the house is condemned. He said everything works.

In another trailer, Gloria VanWhy, her child and her mother live in three rooms with no hot water. The rent goes to Ed Fish, according to the tenant.

It is the property owners who are caught between their tenants and the housing codes. Strunk said his office tells the landlord their property is condemned and they tell the tenants when the property must be vacated.

"Mrs. Kipp has known for years the properties should be ripped down," Strunk said, "and she would like to sell the property if she could get a decent price for it. Other than that, she was in no way against the condemnation and having them torn down."

None of the property owners were available for comment.

Vo-tech's prime contractor denies lag responsibility

STROUDSBURG — E.J. Vito, president of Vito Construction Co., general contractors for the Monroe County Area Vocational-Technical School, denied Thursday his firm was responsible for any construction lag at the school.

He spoke in response to an editorial in Thursday's edition of The Pocono Record. In an interview at his attorney's office, Stanley Ticktin, Vito had this to say:

Q: Will the school be completed by September?

A: I cannot say this, due to the fact there are too many loose ends that I cannot be responsible for.

Q: What would those loose ends be?

A: At the present time, other prime contractors, not our men, are doing interior work that could not be done before this time, due to certain conditions beyond our control.

Q: Are you on schedule for construction?

A: We are losing ground in certain areas due to reasons stated prior to this. We are moving our men in two and three different jobs a day just to keep them busy.

We want to obtain a steady momentum and build it up, but find it impossible to do so at this particular time. This can be verified by all interested parties just by a careful observation of the site.

We have poured 5,500 square feet of cement flooring in one day. I increase the crew for one or two days and have to lay them off until another section is ready.

Q: Are you responsible for getting these new areas ready?

A: No, because there are other prime contractors which I have no control over. Before I can proceed with any phase of concrete work, all plumbing, heating, electrical, duct work and any other related underground work must be complete. I'm not implying these other people are at fault, due to reasons beyond their control.

Q: What's beyond the other contractors' control?

A: One was the steel strike, which delayed the erection approximately eight weeks. Also, a large amount of rock was encountered during excavation. And we are still awaiting door frames. The Nesbitt Corp. (a Philadelphia firm supplying the school's air handling units) was on strike and this would cause a slight delay.

In many areas around the exterior of the building, we find it impossible to complete the excavation due to other trades working in the area. This hinders my production and performance, as well as cost and time.

Q: Have there been any criticisms by directors that you are holding up the job?

A: The only one that has criticized me constantly is (James) Bell (executive director). No matter what went wrong, in any area, he was very quick to attack me for what went wrong. I was attacked a lot of times unjustly by him.

Q: Is he the only source of criticism?

A: To the best of my knowledge, I would say yes.

School tax static in P.V. district

BRODHEADSVILLE — Residents in the Pleasant Valley School District will probably pay exactly the same for school taxes next year.

While the district's school board Thursday night tentatively adopted a 1972-73 budget calling for expenditures of $1,469,481 — up from this year's $1.3 million — the directors held the line on the present 52-mill real estate tax.

All other taxes remain identical: $10 in two per capita taxes, a one-half of one per cent wage tax, a one per cent real estate transfer tax and a 100-mill occupation tax.

Total revenues, including $842,675 from local sources, are figured at $1,514,738.84, which would leave the district with a balance of more than $45,000 at the end of the 1972-73 fiscal year.

The real estate tax is expected to bring in the largest portion of local revenues, $619,398.80. The budget will be adopted on June 22.

Power problem

MOUNT POCONO — A Pennsylvania Power and Light Company phase conductor failed and broke, dropped and contacted a neutral wire knocking out power to 5,100 customers in the area between Mount Pocono and Blakeslee Thursday.

A blown fuse caused a transformer malfunction causing the 7:39 a.m. failure. Power was restored to 5,000 of the 5,100 affected customers in 47 minutes.

The remaining 100 customers, most of whom were in the Pocono Pines and Pocono Lake area along Rt. 940 were restored service more than three hours later.

PP&L crews from Mount Pocono made the repairs.

ESSC play

EAST STROUDSBURG — The French farce "Lucky Pierre" will be open to the public at 8 p.m. today and Saturday at the Second Act Theatre at East Stroudsburg State College.

Although the state aid ratio for Pleasant Valley dropped this year about seven per cent, the board anticipates $486,063 next year from the state, compared to $403,501 this year.

While the ratio lessened due to increased assessed valuation, the reimbursable ceiling for each student next year will be $665, an increase of $45 per pupil.

The budget increase is due mainly to increased instructional costs, said Superintendent John Mills. Those are estimated to be $837,740 — slightly more than a $100,000 rise from this year.

Federal contributions to the district are placed at $21,000, with a balance expected on June 30 of about $165,000. Delinquent taxes should bring in $19,000, with tuition costs placed at $8,567.64.

A breakdown of the proposal (with this year's figures parenthesized) shows:

Administration, $66,014.90 ($62,040.85); attendance, $100; health services, $13,160 ($13,130); transportation, $131,571 ($122,331); plant operation and maintenance, $146,575 ($105,975); fixed charges, $76,202.50 ($71,240); food services $6,400 ($1,500); student activities, $33,825 ($31,171); capital outlay, $21,645 ($42,395); debt service, $100,364.34 (same), and interest system payments, $35,883.80 ($27,000).

Talks to highlight conference dinner

EAST STROUDSBURG — Highlighting tonight's dinner meeting of the First Annual Conference of the School of Education at East Stroudsburg State College will be addresses by Fred Hechinger, a member of the editorial board of the "New York Times," and Dr. Lillian Weber, associate professor of education at the City College of New York.

The theme of the conference, to be held today and Saturday, is "Exploring Open Education: A Humanistic Alternative for the Elementary School of the 70's."

Hechinger will address conference participants on "An Assessment of Open Education" followed by Dr. Weber's presentation of "Informal Education in Britain and America."

Hechinger formerly served as education editor of the "New York Herald Tribune," "Parents Magazine," and the "New York Times."

Dr. Weber has trained approximately 100 teachers who are now using the "informal" education technique in kindergarten through fourth grade in New York City public schools.

Worldwide Church leader ousted from post by father

PASADENA, Calif. — Garner Ted Armstrong has been ousted as second in command of the Worldwide Church of God which has held its annual eight-day festival in Mount Pocono since 1967.

The nationally known radio preacher has been replaced "indefinitely" on the daily broadcast "World Tomorrow," as vice chancellor of Ambassador College at Pasadena, and as executive director of the two-million circulation magazine "The Plain Truth."

According to his father, Herbert W. Armstrong, founder-president of the fundamentalist body, the 41-year-old son is on "indefinite leave" because of "personal and emotional problems."

A letter from the elder Armstrong to all congregations of the 70,000-member sect claimed the son was said to be "in the bonds of Satan."

Les Stocker, public relations director at the ornate 40-acre campus here, confirmed the expression "in the bonds of Satan" had been used, but said it was "as a figure of speech, not a physical contact."

Hints of a father-son falling out were reported last October. Stocker said the younger Armstrong had agreed to step down and took a leave of absence last fall.

In his first public statement since he returned from an extended world tour, the elder Armstrong said last week, that he and church officials had originally hoped that "full repentance and overcoming personal emotional problems would allow reinstatement without a long delay."

At the first of the year, the elder Armstrong and the board apparently received the son back, but the reconciliation did not last long.

"Subsequent events, his attitude and conduct — to our great dismay — demonstrated to board members, ministers and myself that the process of repentance was not yet complete," the elder Armstrong said.

He contended the breach "does not involve any personal conflict or doctrinal dispute between my son and myself." Still solidly in control of the Worldwide Church of God, the father said he and his son both realize now "that he (Garner Ted) must take a considerable period of time to regain his spiritual strength and stability before he can even contemplate the resumption of his heavy responsibilities of preaching and broadcasting."

Unavailable for comment, the son was reported to be alternately in Colorado Springs and Pasadena with his wife and children.

Condemned house owner claims tenants won't move

STROUDSBURG — Dominic A. Lockwood, owner of the property occupied by Sam Johnson at 38 N. Third Street, said Thursday it was his understanding he was helping the people in his house by giving them a place to live while they sought some better housing.

Lockwood, who buys old properties for resale or lease in commercial areas, bought the Third Street property in 1969 with the intention of making it a commercial property in the commercially and industrially zoned Stroudsburg First Ward.

Lockwood said the Johnson family occupied the house when he bought the property. At the time they were paying $35 monthly in rent.

He asked the Johnsons to leave.

In a letter dated Sept. 30, 1969, Lockwood wrote Johnson, "I ask you to vacate the premises as soon as possible."

"It is not my intention to cause you any harm or distress, however, the property is a commercial site and my plans are to begin construction as soon as possible."

Potential buyer

Lockwood said he had a national concern interested in the property for lease-back at the time he wrote the letter. He said the concern later decided not to exercise its option.

County planners act

Subdivision laws revised

STROUDSBURG — Several new amendments to the Monroe County Planning and Zoning Commission's Subdivision Regulations became effective Thursday evening following a public hearing on them in the Monroe County Courthouse.

In addition to altering the regulations' penalty clause, the new revisions now require that specific soil, topographic, well and sewerage location data be entered on the final as well as the preliminary engineering plans.

Commission solicitor Phillip Santucci read the revised regulations to meet prescribed statutory requirements despite the absence of a public audience.

As revised, the penalty clause no longer includes a jail sentence for failure to comply with the regulations and is also applicable to situations in which subdivided lots might be sold without both an engineering plan and commission approval.

Now required on final plans are data indicating swampy areas and those subject to annual flooding, areas of known outcropping and stone fields, and detailed slope information.

In addition, a sanitary feasibility report, which could previously accompany the final plan, is now required to be a part of it. For all subdivisions not served by central water or central sewerage facilities, the final plan must now show recommended locations of wells and subsurface disposal areas.

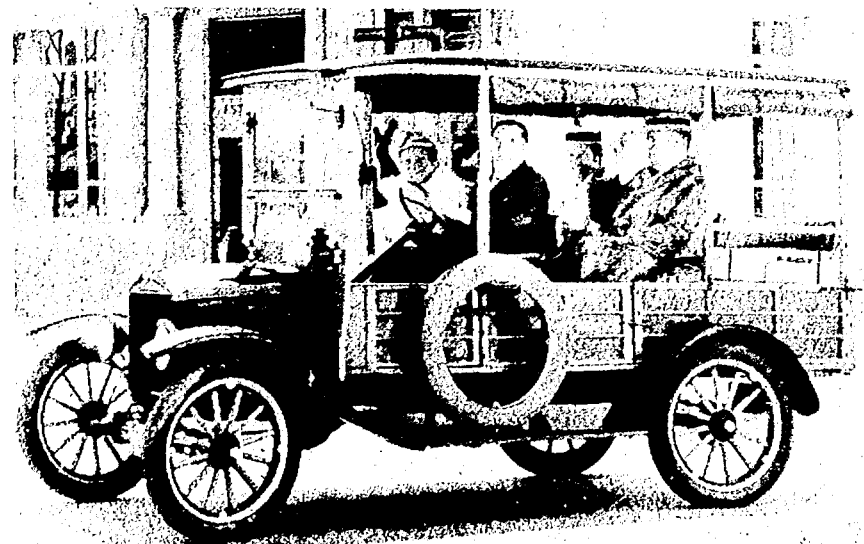

The new revisions further require that final plans be accompanied by profiles of street center-lines and proposed finished street grades when requested by the commission.

Also, agreements to meet minimum public health standards of construction for both on-site sewerage disposal and water supply must now be printed on the final map for all major subdivisions.

The amendments also affect the establishment of utility easements to maintain a prescribed water course where they are adjacent to street and property boundary lines.

Following the hearing, Douglas Williams, planning and zoning administrator, noted many of the amendments now requiring the inclusion of data on the final plans, were aimed at insuring that this information is provided.

"Sometimes they (the developers) would submit the supporting data with the final plan which wasn't always the case. Now we want to make sure it's on the final plan," Williams commented.

Birthday greetings

With Charles DeHaven at the wheel, some of the Stroudsburg Rotarians receive a ride in a 50-year-old station wagon owned by DeHaven, of Snyder'sville, prior to the club's 50th birthday celebration which will take place Saturday at the Penn Stroud.

Boston wins Stanley Cup, 3-0

NEW YORK (UPI)—Bobby Orr, still hobbled by an injured left knee, scored one power play goal and set up the first of Wayne Cashman's two goals Thursday night to give the Boston Bruins their second Stanley Cup in three years with a 3-0 victory over the New York Rangers.

Gerry Cheevers, who was passed over for his scheduled turn in the fifth game of this series after allowing 10 goals to New York in two starts, turned in a perfect job of goaltending with 33 saves as Boston won hockey's most coveted prize, four games to two, in the final. As soon as the nationally-televised game ended, the jubilant Boston players streamed onto the ice to congratulate themselves and accept the Stanley Cup from National Hockey League president Clarence Campbell. Johnny Bucyk, as the senior member of the team, made a victory lap of the rink with the cup just as he did two years ago when the Bruins clinched the championship against St. Louis. Orr, who also scored the winning goal in overtime in the clincher against St. Louis, gave Cheevers all the margin he needed when his long shot went through a maze of New York and Boston skaters to beat Ranger goalie Gilles Villemure at 11:18 of the opening period. Walt Tkaczuk of New York was off for hooking at the time and Villemure appeared to be completely screened on the drive from inside the blue line.

The victory was worth $15,000 a man to the winning Bruins and the Rangers collected $7,500 each.

Bangor opens 1-game lead with 6-5 victory in eighth

BANGOR — Mike Falcone's infield hit with two outs in the eighth inning Thursday scored Bill Jackson with the winning run as Bangor opened its Lehigh-Northampton Northern Division lead to one game with a 6-5 win over Pen Argyl.

The Slaters are now 8-1.

East Stroudsburg is in second place with a 7-2 mark. The two teams meet today at East Stroudsburg.

Pete Gheller led off the eighth inning with a walk. Bill Jackson walked and Neal Cataline got on through an error to load the bases. Gheller was thrown out at the plate on Dennis Strunk's fielder's choice, but Falcone beat out an infield hit to win the game.

Pen Argyl took a 2-0 lead in the first inning when Rhys Williams homered after Steve Gergar walked. Bangor got a run back in the bottom of the inning when Cataline scored on John Fiorot's sacrifice fly.

Pen Argyl scored two more runs in the third on Mark Bray's single, but Bangor got them back in the bottom of the inning on Falcone's double.

Pen Argyl made it 5-3 in the fourth when Williams singled. But Bangor tied the game in the sixth when Gheller and Jackson singled and eventual-ly scored when Cataline got on through an error.

As often happens in sports, it was just a matter of inches that enabled Orr to get off his shot at all. A moment earlier, New York defender Bruce MacGregor very nearly poked-checked the puck away from Orr, but the brilliant Bruin defenseman simply wheeled around to avoid him and let go his shot. Orr won the Connie Smythe trophy as the MVP.

The victory was worth $15,000 a man to the winning Bruins and the Rangers collected $7,500 each.

Mets split as Seaver wins 100

NEW YORK (UPI)—Willie Crawford homered in the fourth inning and tripled to ignite a four-run seventh inning that carried the Los Angeles Dodgers to a 6-4 win over New York Thursday night after Tom Seaver recorded his 100th career triumph in the Mets' 2-1 afternoon game victory.

Crawford followed Willie Davis' home run in the fourth with his fifth of the season and tripled off Jim McAndrews in the seventh. Bill Grabarkewitz doubled Crawford home and scored on Chris Cannizzaro's single.

Chuck Taylor relieved McAndrew after he hit Bobby Valentine with a pitch and, after a sacrifice, Bill Russell doubled home two runs.

In the opener, the Mets scored both their runs in the fifth inning and Seaver made them stand up until he fired in the ninth. Ed Kranepool hit his third homer of the season leading off the inning for one run and three walks and a throwing error by pitcher Bill Singer enabled the second tally to cross the plate.

Rangers gain 3-1 victory

BALTIMORE (UPI)—Elliott Maddox stroked two doubles and a single and reliever Casey Cox preserved Bill Gogolewski's second victory Thursday night as the Texas Rangers downed the Baltimore Orioles, 3-1.

The Rangers scored twice off loser Jim Palmer when Maddox led off with a double in the first inning and Dave Nelson and Don Mincher walked to load the bases. Palmer walked Hal King to force across Maddox and an error by Bobby Grich on a ground ball scored Nelson from third base.

EAST STROUDSBURG — Polly Case scored six goals and Deb Boller three as East Stroudsburg State College ended its lacrosse season with a 15-0 victory over Penn State Thursday.

Mays finally returns to site of beginning of career

NEW YORK (UPI)—Willie Mays, one of baseball's super stars for the past 20 years who now has entered into the twilight of his playing career, was traded by the San Francisco Giants to the New York Mets Thursday for minor league pitcher Charley Williams and $50,000 in cash.

The deal, which was announced by Mets' General Manager Bob Scheffing after a 2-1/2 hour meeting at a midtown hotel, brings the 41-year-old Mays what he feels is financial security for life. It also brings him back to New York, the town where he broke into the major leagues as a spunky kid in 1951.

"It's the best thing that ever happened to me in my life," said Mays, who will fly to the West Coast to get his belongings and then return to New York in time for the Mets' game with his old teammates, the Giants, on Sunday.

"When Willie's playing days are over and he decides he's not going to play any more, he will have a three-year employment contract," said M. Donald Grant, chairman of the Board of the Mets. "Mr. Berra and Mr. Scheffing will get together with Willie and decide exactly what capacity that will be."

Chances are that Mays will become a Met coach when his playing days are over. And then maybe even manager. For the present the Mets will pay the remainder of Mays' $165,000 annual salary.

"I think he'll be very helpful this year and hopefully in years to come," Grant said. "We would like him to be out there on the field after his career is over. It worked for Yogi and I'm sure the same thing can happen for Willie. He has a job with us for the rest of his life if he wants it."

Grant couldn't offer any concrete answer to the question whether Mays someday will become manager. But he didn't rule out that possibility either.

"I'm not going to say he will, but you never know," said Grant. "It could happen."

Mays, whose 646 lifetime homers are second only to Babe Ruth, carried a .305 career batting average into the 1972 season. But Willie has been an infrequent performer this year with the Giants, hitting only .189 in 19 games. He pinch hit a single, his last hit for the Giants, against the Montreal Expos on Tuesday night and then abruptly left the team for New York to meet with Met officials and Giant owner Horace Stoneham.

Mays arrived at Grant's hotel suite at 10:15 a.m. EDT and was in private discussion along with Stoneham and Berra to join the meeting. One hour later Willie Mays became a Met.

Grant explained how the deal was consummated. "I told Horace, 'Look, you don't want cash, but let me give it to you so that we can close this thing and then you can buy another player.'"

Stoneham, unable to talk the Mets into giving up another player besides Williams, a righthander now pitching for Tidewater in the International League, agreed to the cash settlement.

"Our club is not in bad shape financially," Stoneham said. "We don't need the money. The basis behind all this was Willie's future after he retires. The Mets were able to cope with it better than we were. I think this way it's better for Willie."

Mays said that he felt he could contribute to the Mets' pennant hopes this season. "You fellows gotta realize that the Mets have a pretty good team," Mays told newsmen. "They're not going to put me out there just because I'm Willie Mays. But I feel I can contribute. 'I'm not coming out here and saying, 'Here I am! Play me or I'll go back home.' I'll do what I always did, the best I can."

Mays has given more than his share to baseball since he was called up in 1951 from the Minneapolis farm club in the American Association. He hit 20 home runs and batted .274 to win Rookie of the Year honors that year as the Giants miraculously took Brooklyn into a playoff and then beat the Dodgers on Bobby Thompson's dramatic home run.

Mays played only 36 games the following year before he went into the U.S. Army for a two year tour. Willie was in the best of form on his return when he hit .345 to lead the National League in 1954. He hammered 41 home runs and drove in 110 runs.

In the World Series that year against the Cleveland Indians Mays' catch of Vic Wertz in the Polo Grounds is still considered one of the greatest in history.

In 1955 Mays hit 51 homers to capture the first of four home run titles. He hit 49 in 1962, 47 in 1964 and 52 in 1965, the year he won his second MVP.

Mays tied a major league record on April 30, 1961 when he hit four home runs in a single game against the then Milwaukee Braves.

He surpassed the 20-homer mark in 17 seasons—a major league mark—and also holds the NL records for lifetime home runs, most games as an outfielder and most games two or more home runs.

With all his accomplishments one might think it would be a tough decision for Mays to pick his greatest thrill in baseball.

But Willie didn't hesitate a second when asked that question Thursday.

"My first hit (a homer off Warren Spahn) and my last hit as a Giant."

Spartans defeated by 10-6

EAST STROUDSBURG — North Warren bunched four runs in the first two innings Thursday and went on to beat Notre Dame of East Stroudsburg, 10-6, for its first win in 13 games.

North Warren scored three runs in the seventh inning to put the game away.

Shoots 66 to tie with Marti

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI)—Bruce Crampton rode a "super day" with his putter into a late-in-the-day four under par 66 finish that gave him a share of the first round Colonial National Invitation Golf Tournament lead Thursday with Texan Fred Marti.

Marti tore up the front nine of the 7,100-yard, par 35-37 Colonial Country Club course early in the day with a 31 and that looked as if it would withstand a rash of challengers until the consistent little Australian rolled home with the shadows.

"I had one super day with my putter, taking only 23 putts from the actual putting surface and 28 counting the fringe," said Crampton, who has been in 17 tournaments this year.

Crampton shares lead at Colonial

At that, he and Marti—a strapping blond from Baytown, Tex.—held only a thin one-stroke edge over four strong pursuers and had another half dozen just two strokes back.

Crampton was in the rough at least a half dozen times and started his round with a bogey six after going from rough to bunker to bunker. But, he bounced back with a 12-foot

Protect home from spring floods

NEW YORK (UPI) — Spring showers all too often bring not only May flowers but flooding to plague the homeowner.

"Knowing what to do before as well as after a flood, or even after your home has been damaged by water from broken pipes or a backed-up sewer, can reduce property loss and ensure personal safety," says John Wrend, manager of the Mutual Loss Research Bureau, an affiliate of the American Mutual Insurance Alliance.

Wrend offers some pertinent suggestions:

—During a flood, the water level in many homes never reaches the second story, and frequently flood water is only a foot or two deep in first floor living quarters. Property loss can be reduced by moving personal effects such as clothing, movable furniture and appliances to high shelves or to the upper levels of a home before flood water enters.

—In areas where flooding is a problem, check valves should be installed in sewer traps to prevent flood water from backing up in sewer drains. Often water pours into a basement through sewer drains while the flood waters never reach the foundation of the home.

Cars should be kept fueled and moved to higher ground in the likelihood of flooding. Don't leave yourself trapped without a quick escape route. Usually it's best to use the high roads.

—When flooding is imminent, your city probably will turn off electrical power. All homes also have a main power switch. A good precautionary measure is to pull this switch to off position before the flood waters reach your electrical outlets.

—When there is time, equipment such as furnace motors should be removed from basements to a high place such as the attic.

—Flood engineers say during flooding, underground fuel tanks (unless full or nearly full) often buoy through the ground to the surface, tearing out copper tubing. This creates a hole which quickly fills with water, increasing the pressure and frequently causing collapse of the home foundation. In addition, often there is oil leakage. As a precaution, some homeowners have underground tanks refilled with fuel or fill them with water from a garden hose when a flood is imminent.

—Engineers have discovered also that attempts to pump basements dry during the flood stage often result in collapse of foundation walls as a result of increased pressure in the surrounding soil. They recommend during flooding, or when flooding is imminent, basements be intentionally flooded to equalize pressure on foundation walls. Deliberate flooding of basements with clean water also minimizes cleanup after a flood, they say.

—First aid supplies, a stock of food requiring no refrigeration, flashlights and other types of portable lamps should be kept on hand. A supply of water should be stored in second floor bathrooms and in containers.

—Check with an insurance representative concerning flood insurance, which is now available.

After flood waters have receded and it's safe to return home, Wrend recommends the following procedure:

—Before entering the house make sure it is structurally sound and in no danger of collapse.

—Never smoke or use an open flame. Escaping gas may have collected in hidden pockets.

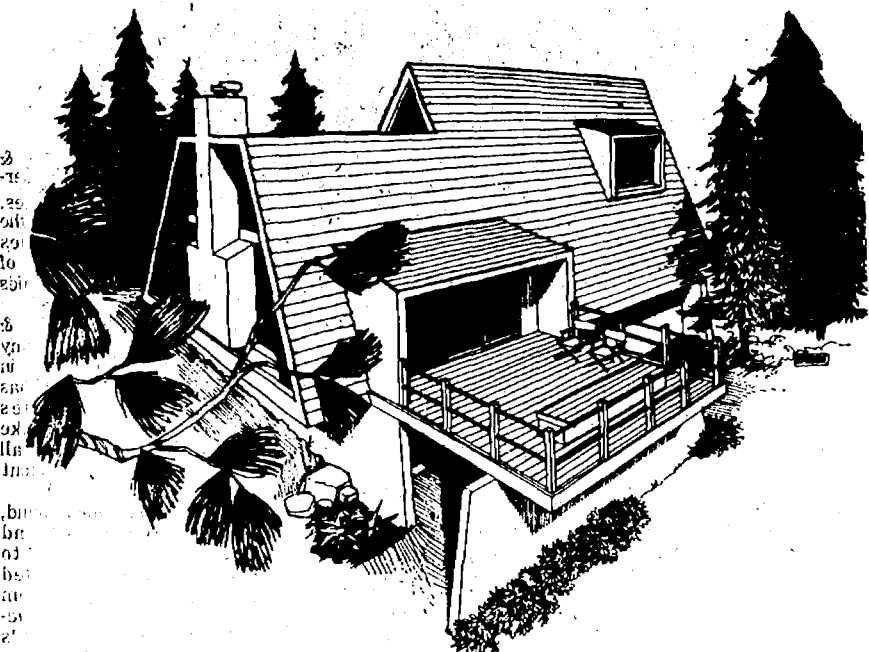

If power has been restored don't turn on the electrical system until it has been checked out and is thoroughly dry. Have electrical and household equipment inspected by a licensed electrician.

At first the cleanup job may appear hopeless. Doors may be warped and jammed, kitchen cabinets ruined, windows smashed by floating furniture and a heavy layer of mud may cover floors and carpets. Still, Wrend says, a great deal can be salvaged if immediate proper restoration steps are taken.

A-frame vacation dream

By JOHN D. BLOODGOOD

The soaring roof line of this A-frame house makes it seem right for vacation living.

The front portion of the "A" is truncated to give a more practical shape to the two-story living room, while the rear portion is peaked in the usual way to allow a maximum feeling of space in the upper sleeping loft.

The roof continues four feet beyond the house at each end, providing shade as well as wind protection for large glass areas.

The living room, with its cozy fireplace, opens on a large outdoor deck. A compact kitchen makes vacation meals easy to prepare.

On the main level, the master bedroom has a window wall and double closets. Near the entry, a circular, steel-framed stair leads up to the sleeping loft.

A generous 28 feet long, it can serve as guest quarters, hobby area, whatever you like.

Unit expands closet with shelves, bins

This storage unit can be a useful addition to a crowded closet. Overall, it is 14 inches deep by 36 inches long, but look how much it can hold.

Coats and jackets hang on the open clothes pole — they project beyond the front cabinet face. Top shelves are for small articles; bin, at left, is for mail, papers, reminder lists, etc.

This unit can be built in a back hall, at one side of a deep closet, at a stair landing, wherever things accumulate.

Doors expand

Expanding living space is aim of new Jet-Set wooden bi-fold doors from U.S. Plywood. These two- or four-door units come in flush, louver and half-louver styles. Some suggested applications are: for closets, as room dividers, as close-offs to kitchen or dining room, as architectural accents in archways.

Moving out

Look of the tropics moves out to patio or garden living room, with "Tahitian Bamboo," a new pattern for Samsonite's "Cushionaire" outdoor furniture. Foam-cushioned flexible plastic slats are covered with decorative vinyl and resist weather, as do the specially treated steel frames.

Lime yellow fire trucks? Yup, and hot sellers, too

BY STANLEY H. SLOM
Dow Jones—Hawley News

Riddle: Why does a fireman ride on a lime-yellow fire truck?

Answer: To put out a fire.

That may be one answer to a variation on the old riddle, but a major manufacturer of fire trucks has another. Lime-yellow is more visible than red, the firm says. Thus, it implies, everybody from pedestrian to VW driver to trucker will have a better chance of getting out of the way.

But the company is trying to attract the attention of more than just pedestrians and drivers. It's also out to woo the nation's 22,000 fire departments, which buy 3,500 fire trucks a year for an estimated $75 million to $100 million.

Much of the fiery competition for business comes from the two giants of the industry, which are both in upstate New York and have similar names. And the competition heats up even more because this year's president of one company was last year's president of the other.

One adversary is the older and larger American LaFrance Division of A-T-O Inc. in Elmira, N.Y., and just across the Chemung River in Elmira Heights is Ward LaFrance Truck Corp., a subsidiary of Talcott National Corp.

It was Ward LaFrance that came out with the lime-yellow trucks. But there's more than color to the competition. Almost every fire department orders its truck custom-made, and Ward LaFrance says that in its so-called standard line there are more than 8,000 options.

The 20,000 volunteer fire departments are especially concerned about those options. Says T. Sloane Palmer, public relations director of American LaFrance and himself a fire-engine historian: "One of the compensations for the volunteer fireman has to be in the apparatus. It's very competitive, and they like to show off in parades. They'll put on more lights and more horns to be different from other departments."

The Turtle Creek, Pa., volunteer department, for instance, wanted its name painted in gold leaf on the truck's roof so it could be seen from the air.

Another volunteer company wanted 21 flashing lights on the roof of the cab. Still another wanted lights under the truck to illuminate the ground. And there's a definite demand for large, shiny bells.

One chief ordered his bell with a rope rather than an electric motor so he could ring it manually on the way to the fire. Bronze plaques are big, too. They contain the names of the fire chief and the fire-truck-buying committee and are affixed to the sides of the trucks.

One official says his company got together with an optometrist named Stephen Solomon of Oswego, N.Y., who, the official says, used a scientific method to prove that, day or night, lime-yellow is a more visible color for the trucks than red.

From across the Chemung River, however, comes a chuckle. It emanates from Peter Hoey, the president of American LaFrance, who until last year had served as Ward LaFrance's president. Lime-yellow, he says, is just a gimmick to help his competitor sell more trucks.

But — to use the terminology of the trade — Hoey has decided to fight fire with fire. If it's an off-color fire truck a city wants, Hoey says, American LaFrance will give it any hue it wants.

Pine City, N.Y., has a green engine. North Braddock, Pa., has a purple one. Shreveport, La., has white trucks. And yellow is becoming popular with a number of departments.

Deserter returned

LAUBURG, Germany (UPI)—East German authorities have sent back a West German army deserter who fled in a military jeep March 21, customs police said Sunday. They said criminal police arrested 21-year-old Manfred Hartig at the border crossing point to which he was delivered by East German authorities.

Youth threaten college income

BY RICHARD MARTIN
Dow Jones—Hawley News

Frederick Conti, a 22-year-old senior at the University of Maine in Gorham, recently registered to vote.

And he did it in Gorham, where he lives year-round in an off-campus apartment, instead of in Saugus, Mass., which he used to call home.

That made him a local resident in the eyes of University of Maine officials. They promptly slashed his tuition to $450 this year from the $1,300 a year he had been paying as an out-of-state resident. It's a tidy savings of $850 for Fred and his parents in Saugus, who pay about a third of his college costs.

But it could prove to be a staggering blow for the University of Maine, which stands to lose up to $1.2 million a year if all the 1,400 out-of-state, voting-age students on its eight campuses follow Fred Conti's example.

And that's only the beginning. In the wake of last year's passage of the 16th amendment giving voting rights to 18-year-olds, students all over the country are winning the right to vote in towns where they go to college. Then they are contending that their voting addressess entitle them to pay resident tuition rates.

Batteries of state lawyers and a flock of university presidents plan to fight that contention in courts. The stakes involved are enormous — perhaps as much as $300 million. In all, some 4400 state-supported, four-year colleges and universities — most of them with pinched budgets — could be affected. They enroll 500,000 out-of-state students. (Private colleges wouldn't be affected because they charge the same tuition to all students.)

Allan W. Ostar, executive director of the American Assn. of State Colleges and Universities, with 289 schools and two million students, thinks the days are numbered for nonresident tuition rates.

"The courts have already ruled out long residency requirements for voting purposes and for welfare eligibility," he says. "I think it's just a matter of time before tuition will be affected, too."

Already, several suits have been filed. Four University of Maryland students have challenged that school's right to charge varying rates. Their Federal court suit is scheduled for a hearing in August.

Six University of Michigan law students are suing in a state court to block nonresident charges to students registered to vote in the state. Nonresidents make up 19 per cent of the school's enrollment of 39,000 and pay 44 per cent of total tuition revenues.

Nearby Michigan State University, with 15 per cent of its 41,600 students from out-of-state, figures it stands to lose up to $5.5 million a year, or about five per cent of the school's annual operating budget, if the students win their suit.

"That would be devastating," says a Michigan State spokesman.

Two separate suits have been referred to North Carolina's supreme court; lower courts reached opposite decisions on them. The university's six campuses face potential losses of $9.3 million a year. What's more, the nonresident tuition is scheduled to rise $500, to $1,800, next fall. The resident tuition currently is $225; no figure has been set for next fall.

"I think most undergraduates will have great difficulty in establishing residency if they're living in the dorms, getting money from home, going home for vacations and driving cars registered to their parents," says Richard Robinson, an assistant to the president in Raleigh. "But I do think a great many of the students in our graduate and professional schools, especially the married ones, could be affected."

NECK, SHOULDER AND ARM COMPLAINTS

By Dr. Thomas F. Snyder
D.C., Q.C.C.O.

Duly, the Doctor of Chiropractic is called upon to care for patients with neck, shoulder and arm problems, that may be called by the patient: neuritis, bursitis, neuralgia, rheumatism or sprained, strained muscles, or even poor circulation.

The causes of these conditions are varied; spinal subluxations (displacement of one or more vertebrae which cause irritation to the nerve), spinal curvatures, postural defects, occupational stresses, etc.

In cases of this type, the Chiropractor's first concern is to find the cause of the disability through questioning the patient and giving a spinal examination. He will then adjust the spinal subluxation or distortion which caused the irritation to the nerves, thereby relieving the patient's symptoms and maintaining health.

(One of a series of articles published in the public interest to explain and illustrate the scientific practice of Chiropractic, written by Dr. Thomas Franklin Snyder, Chiropractic Orthopedist, Brodheadville, Pa. Phone 992-4787.)

Ireland cannot be blasted into unity; division basic DUBLIN (UPI)—The bombers of Ulster try to blast Ireland into unity. The politicians and people of Ireland know reunification is not that easy.

Ireland's division is not fundamentally political and economic, like the differences which sunder West and East Germany or North and South Korea. Ireland's problem is primarily religious. It is no less bitter or difficult for that.

For Irishmen in the 26-county republic, the unity of all Ireland always has been an aim. The immediate goal now is to eliminate existing barriers to the majority Protestant community in the north joining in some form of a united Ireland.

Premier Jack Lynch already has proposed the formation of an all-party committee to review the republic's constitution. For some provisions of the constitution itself are a roadblock to unity, one which no extremist bomb can dent.

Northern Ireland is two-thirds protestant. The Republic of Ireland, according to the 1961 census, had 2,673,473 Roman Catholics to 144,868 persons of other faiths.

In the republic, though not in the north, divorce is illegal. In the republic, though not in the north, the sale of contraceptives is a criminal offense. In the republic, clause 44 of the constitution says:

"The state recognizes the special position of the Holy Catholic Apostolic and Roman Church as the guardian of the faith professed by the great majority of the citizens."

Lynch already has indicated this clause will go when the constitution is revised. Both opposition parties support him in this.

So does the Roman Catholic Church. Cardinal William Conway, primate of all Ireland, has said "no tears will be shed" if the "special position" clause is abolished. He and his church hierarchy hold that the clause is a meaningless expression which has conferred no special privilege on the church.

Most remaining controversy has centered on divorce and contraception. Two Labor party deputies in the Dail (Parliament) have led the fight for both. They are Dr. Noel C. Browne and Dr. Conor Cruise O'Brien.

O'Brien, a former United Nations official in the Congo and a playwright of international note, has described contraception and divorce as civil rights to which the Protestant community is entitled. He has attacked the republic's constitution as a bar to Irish unity.

Browne collided head-on with the church hierarchy in the 1950s in a case involving a free state-sponsored maternity scheme which would have included sex instruction. He lost his cabinet post as health minister as a result, and later his Parliamentary seat (which he later regained.)

He has been an outspoken church critic ever since. His position is that the north's Protestants "would be foolish" to accept a united Ireland under current law and while the church remains so dominant in the republic.

Efforts have been made to remove the legal bars to unity.

Seven years ago an all-party committee recommended abolition of the constitutional provision which states specifically: "No law shall be enacted providing for the grant of a dissolution of marriage." No action was taken on the committee's recommendation.

Repeated attempts to amend the law barring the sale of contraceptives never have gotten as far as a parliamentary debate. Lynch has said his government would introduce amending legislation "at the appropriate time," but has dragged its feet because of church and grass-roots pressure.

Often these are identical. Catholic prelates in Ireland do not actively engage in politics in the sense that no priests stand for election. But church influence at the grass roots level is very strong. And church influence has played an important part in shaping policy both locally and nationally.

Traditionally the church has defended its right to speak out on social and moral issues. "The church would be opting out of its God given responsibility if it remained silent on such issues," a church spokesman said.

But the marginal line between moral issues and day-to-day politics will overshadow all debate if and when an all-party committee tries to hew down the legal obstacles to a united Ireland.

America was born and raised in a Ford.

Now it's coming home again.

It was before your time, you say? These days it was before almost everyone's time.

But it meant something, the Ford name on a car. Because it was so much more than the name.

It was the idea.

The Ford idea.

It began in a day when roads were little more than cowpaths and stagecoach trails.

And if you wanted to go west like the man said, it took months to get there.

The idea was simple enough: Let's put America on powered wheels.

Let's get them out of their horse-and-buggies and give them a chance to really move.

Let's put together...what'll we call it, an Automobile?...a moving machine that will cost less to own than a couple of fillies.

Let's then make sure the machine keeps moving.

Let's build it right. And make it easy to keep right. That was the Ford idea. That is the Ford idea.

Ford is no longer building its cars out back of the house. But it's still a family business.

We don't mean the Henry Ford family alone. We mean the people who build and service and sell Ford cars for a living.

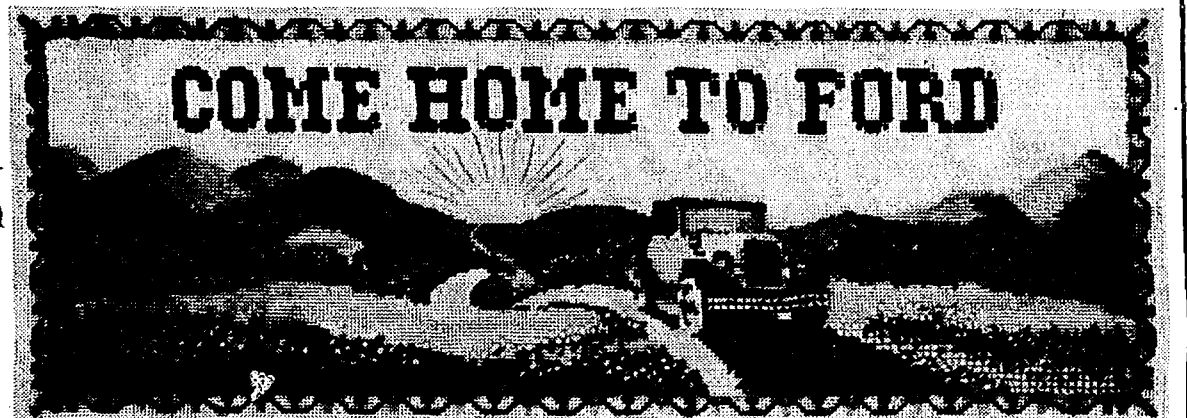

The Ford idea is their idea.

Many of them have been at it almost since the first Fords took to the road.

How do you live up to an idea that's a legend as well?

You do more than tune a nation's engines—you tune in to its needs.

You take your old rumble seat concept, turn it sideways, and come up with the Pinto Runabout, a nifty economy car with a big rear loading compartment.

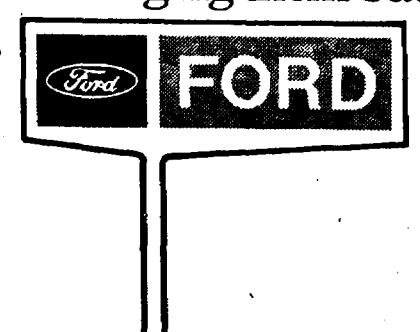

You make the Maverick, a magnificently uncomplicated car that doesn't need a team of experts to keep on humming along.

You make the Torino, the Mustang, the Galaxie, the LTD and the Thunderbird beautiful—but you shape that beauty by common sense and safety.

You build each one right. And you follow through locally to keep it right.

The idea is as simple as it ever was. And it's taking a lot of heads out of the clouds and bringing them back home.

To Ford.

ber, 1967, following an unsuccessful attempt to oust the army from power, the Greek strongman assumed the office of premier and promoted Gen. George Zoiakakis to regent. Zoiakakis now has gone. He was fired a month ago because he would not sign some bills the government had drawn up, and Papadopoulos took over the duties of stand-in king himself, saying nothing about when the 31-year-old monarch—Constantine—might return.

After five years, Papadopoulos—who is also the defense, foreign affairs and government policy minister—reigns supreme in Greece, but many of his promises are unfulfilled.

The last vestiges of the armed take-over April 21, 1967, have long since gone.

The island prison camps ceased to exist a year ago, although there are still 400 or so convicted political prisoners—mostly university professors, judges, intellectuals and students, some of whom are serving life terms in jail.

Martial law has been abolished in the countryside, but it remains in Athens and Salonika, the two urban centers where more than one third of the 9 million population lives. Court martials are fewer and usually involve liberal or right-wing opponents of the regime. Communists are invariably tried by the more lenient civil courts, but allegations of police torture, so frequent in the earlier days, have considerably diminished.

Censorship was abolished in 1970, but a press law providing for up to 10 years imprisonment or even disqualification as a journalist took its place.

Since 1968, a new constitution has been in effect but articles dealing with political freedoms, party politics, and elections are suspended.

Parliament's place for the time being is taken by a 76-member advisory committee on legislative work. The committee, not provided for by the constitution, was elected by about 10,000 selected voters from professional and labor organizations for a two-year period.

These things matter more to some Greeks, especially in the provinces.

TAURUS

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)
— Think before engaging in new activities. Some are NOT for you. Study past reactions to your decisions, and you will be more careful making the next ones.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus)
— Don't be anxious about some unexpected change in your work area; it could prove profitable. But don't initiate drastic changes yourself without good reason.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini)
— New opportunities indicated in several areas. A moderate pace, accented by progressive moves will be your best recipe for the day. Travel, romance favored.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer)
— You may encounter some difficult persons now, even run into unexpected opposition. Remain tolerant, tactful and affable, and things will blow over.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo)
— Your bright ideas may meet with opposition, but if you are sure you're right, go ahead and launch them. Others will come around to your way of thinking later.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo)
— A day for discretion. Be sure you do not offend friends or co-workers by thoughtless words. Work out disagreements, if any, with logic—and graciousness.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra)
— Give extra attention to business affairs now. The slightest carelessness or neglect of detail could cause needless losses later.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Making progress may not be easy now, but steady advancement is possible if you work for it. Aim to solve problems with equanimity, through restrained discussions.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius)
— Jupiter auspicious. You have fine opportunities to advance, so seek them out and don't sit moaning while others take their place in the sun.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn)

Don't push

By Jean Adams

OLD FRIEND: (Q.) I went to high school with this boy. He seemed to like me, although we never dated. He was very friendly and we talked a lot.

Then he turned up in a freshman class of mine in our community college. Two of my old girl friends are also in the class. They know I like him and they make nasty remarks out loud, like "Linda likes Jim." And they laugh. You know how 18-year-old girls can laugh.

Now Jim won't say a word to me except "hi" and "bye." How can I get him to talk to me again like he used to?

No Talk in Wisconsin: (A.) Jim is older. He knows that you have more in mind now than just friendly talk. He is not sure about himself or about you.

Keep on being friendly with him, but not pushy, not grabby, not eager. Let him see you calm and natural and warm and mature.

Let your girl friends' wisecracks die a natural death. They will.

Then maybe Jim will warm up to you and thaw out.

SWEET FEET: (Comment) I read your answer to the clean girl who perspired and had a bad odor. I had a similar problem, only it was with my feet.

Finally I went to a doctor. He asked me about my diet. When I told him I hated green leafy vegetables he told me, "You don't have any chlorophyll in your body."

I had always thought "rabbit food" like that was for girls and women. But I started eating it. In three days my feet quit smelling.

Lettuce Eater in Louisiana

(A.) Every teen-ager needs green leafy vegetables. They are a part of a balanced diet. They are basic to health. So no one can go wrong eating them, whether they help keep feet sweet or not.

19 AND 22: (Q.) I met this girl about a year ago and ever since we have been very good friends but not anything more than that. Two weeks ago at a party she told me she liked me very much. Do you think there is anything wrong with us going out. She is 22 and I'm 19.

Still a Teen-Ager in Texas

(A.) No, I don't. Your interests must be similar or you would not be very good friends. And the difference between 19 and 22 is not so great as, say, the difference between 14 and 17. This is because both the male and the female have usually reached a stage of relative maturity by age 19.

WIRES: (Q.) I want to wear wire glasses, but my mother says people look weird in them. I tell her some people do, some people don't. My mother also says they cost more. What can I do? I really want them.

Same Old Glasses in Florida

(A.) Wire frames are quite popular now and look good on girls with the right kind of faces. They are light and comfortable.

You would have to get new frames, but aside from that the expense would not be formidable. Dressy, attractive glasses frames in any style are not cheap.

Your mother probably thinks wires look weird simply because they are different. Ask her to go frame shopping with you and see how you would look in them. You might look great. I hope you will.

Elephants killed

NEW DELHI (UPI)—A male and a female elephant were electrocuted last week when they uprooted a power pole in Corbett National Park, 25 miles north of here, the Press Trust of India (PTI) said recently. The pole carried an 11,000-volt high tension line.

Ambassador post

ISLAMABAD (UPI)—The Pakistani government recently announced the appointment of Agha Shahi, 41, as ambassador to China. Shahi, a career diplomat, has been ambassador and permanent representative to the United Nations since 1967.
